The Grammarians of Koofuh-in general, ascribe the government of the Aorist, to the simple circumstance of its being unaccompanied with any of those particles which occasion it to terminate in if and this also is the opinion of Ibno Malik.*

Annotation.

These Concords in Speech produce Propositions and Sentences, as that previous Concord in Nature produces Natural Beings! this being admitted"— "What?—Why that Nouns and Adjectives like natural Beings coalesce and bring forth Sentences!" we proceed by oberving, that when a Sentence is regular and orderly, Nature's Substance, the Logician's Subject, and the Grammarian's Substantive are all denoted by that Case, which we call the Nominative." He then goes on to explain how the Attribute in imitation of its Substantive would appear in the Nominative Case also.—"Every Attributive would as far as possible conform itself to its Substantive, so for this reason, when it has Cases, it imitates its Substantive, and appears as a Nominative also. When it has no Cases, it is forced to content itself with such assimilations as it has!" Surely this is not the language of the 'EPMHE AOFIOE;—the mighty oracle of winged words and philosophical arrangements! See Hermes, B. the second, p. 280.

FINIS.

+ Harris classes Verbs, Participles, and Adjectives under the general head of Attributes, and for this, the poor man has not escaped the lash of the Wimbleden Aristarchus. "Harris should have called them either Attributes or Attributes; but having terminated the names of his three other Classes (Substantive, Definitive, Connective) in Ive, he judged it more regular to terminate the title of this Class also in Ive: having no notion whatever, that all common terminations have a meaning and probably aupposing them to be, (as the Etymologists ignorantly term them) more protractiones vocum; as if words were wire-drawn, and that it was a mere matter of taste in the writer to use indifferently either one termination or another at his pleasure."

Zued is going. Secondly, as governing the Aorist tense of a Verb, which arises from its aptitude to supply the place of a Noun, as ترث كالي Zued knows, in which example the Aorist برخ is marked ورث و or governed in the Nominative Case, being considered the adequate substitute for a Noun, as we may use المناف ألم ألم المناف المناف المناف ألم ألم المناف المن

Annotation.

The Nominative Absolute in Greek, which may be considered equivalent to the Amil Manumer in Arabic, is accounted for by Grammarians by supposing a verbal ellipsis, as they contend that there can be no Nominative without a Verb either expressed or understood. This doctrine may perhaps be applied to the Case in question, though the ancient* Arabian Grammarians endeavour to account for the construction in a different manner, alledging that the Subject governs the Predicate, while others again pretend that they mutually govern each other.

With regard to the government assumed by the Aorist, it is the opinion of Kissaee that it should be considered Verbal, and not Aisolute as laid down in the Commentary, and this Verbal regimen he ascribes to one of the four formative letters of the Aorist, namely عار يا الله عند ال

The Nominative Case, † or that Case in Arabic which expresses the subject of a proposition without the means of any Verbal Governor, may be illustrated by the following extract from Hermes. "It has been said already in the preceding chapter, that the great Objects of natural union are Substance and Attribute. Now from this Natural Concord arises the Logical Concord haunt the Tigris are amazing, and the voraciousness with which they swallow up the bait delights me, I have therefore taken my station here, and expect good sport.—I have lost my way said the traveller, for the path is entirely defaced by the overflowing of the river.—A net rejoined the fisherman, is by no means so good, for its meshes are always getting out of order,—no, no, a hook if you please for my money.—I am going to Bagdad, continued the other, what direction should I take? you must know being an inhabitant of this part of the country; shall I turn to the north, or towards yonder date-trees?—I can supply you with as many fish as you like answered the fisherman, for I have caught a great many to day, both great and small, but I do not part with them for less than 20 foolooses, ready cash!—The man thinking he had directed him towards the north, went away and the fisherman remained where he was.

OF THE GOVERNMENT TERMED متعنوى OR ABSOLUTE.

By Absolute Government (العامل العامل) is meant a government perceived by the mind, and in which a word as an agent has no concern. It is distinguished in two ways. First, as governing the Subject and Attribute in the Nominative Case, which is the primary form of a word in construction, or the state of a Noun uninfluenced by any Verbal governor, as

Annotation.

The Government termed as opposed to will or Verbal, may be properly denominated Absolute or Independent, and like the Absolute Case in Greek, it comprehends the Participle or Verbal Adjective with its substantive Noun, or the wind and which are termed also the Subject and Predicate, and which seem to correspond with the Quop Loquimur and De Quo Loquimur of European Grammarians. This therefore may account for the mark of Case assigned by the Arabs to the Aorist Tense of a Verb, for the Aorist as well as the Participle forms the wind, the Quop Loquimur or Predicate, to the will as the Participle forms the similar of this Absolute Government, produce the connexion termed which constitute a perfect or complete Proposition.

STORY.

I resided at Busrah,* said a certain Arabian Yorick, as a parson and professor of humanity, and was one day a good deal amused by a strange fellow, squint-eyed, straddle-footed, lame of both legs, with rotten teeth, stammering-tongue, staggering in his gate like a man intoxicated, puffing and blowing like a thirsty dog, and foaming at the mouth like an angry camel, who came up and seated himself before me. Whence come you, said I, O father of gladness? From home please your worship said he. And pray where is your home I rejoined, and what is the cause of your journey? My home he replied, is near the great mosque, adjoining the poor house, and I am come for the purpose of being married, and to beg you will perform the ceremony. The object of my choice is this long-tongued, importunate hump-backed, scarlet-skined, one-eyed, no-nosed, stinking, deaf, wide-mouthed, daughter of my uncle. Do you agree Miss Long-tongue said, I, to marry this Mr. Pot-belly? At the vigour of his onset the most impervious holds gave way,

And he made himself an easy passage through the narrowest defiles.

He never encountered an adversary in single combat,

Without returning from the tilt with a blood stain'd spear:

Nor assaulted a fortress however fenc'd and barricado'd,

Without being hailed on the erection of his standard, with the auspicious cry,

Assistance from above and a speedy victory!'*

Thus he lived triumphant:—arrayed every night in the stately garb of youth.

Giving rapture to the young and beautiful and receiving it in return,

Nay caressed by all as an idol of perfection.

But time which continu'd to extract his vigour and diminish his strength,

At length succeeded in effecting his fall,

And reduced him to so mean and shriveled a plight,

That his very friends beheld him with contempt.

The exorcists and cunning men in vain attempted his recovery,

And the most skilful Physicians were baffled in their attempts:

Then indeed he abandoned arms, for arms had abandoned him,

After giving and receiving many a hostile salute.

He is now dejected, drooping and crest fallen,†

And such is the fate of man who is born to misery.

Behold to-day the warrior stranger on his funeral couch,

And who will bestow a trifle to have him decently intered?

O People I have a surprising story to unfold,

From which the wise and ingenious may derive advantage!

I was acquainted in my youthful days with a potent Hero,

Whose warrior-blade was sharp and piercing,

Who entered the lists of combat in crested pride,

Confident of success and fearless of danger.

* The word the Plural of means both brilliant swords and beautiful women. I have tried to preserve the quibble but I fear not very successfully.

Of the examples however given in the above table, two are rejected by Grammarians as improper, namely the 13th in which the Adjective Noun is made definite by the Article  $\int_{1}^{\infty}$  and connected in the relation of the Aorist Case with its own  $\int_{-\infty}^{0.9} e^{-}$  which is itself constructed with a Pronoun in the aorist case; and the 15th in which the Adjective Noun is made definite by the Article, and connected in the aorist case with an Indefinite Noun.

The propriety of the 16th example is also disputed by some and defended by others, but I willingly resign the office of umpire to any other Commentator.

Of the fifteen remaining examples the 1st, 4th, 8th, 9th, 11th, 12th, 14th, 15th and 16th, are termed by the Arabian Grammarians of i. e. elegant or perfectly correct. The 7th and 10th or unobjectionable, and the 2d, 3d, 5th and 6th,

I shall close this long grammatical narcotic on Infinitives, Verb Adjectives and Noun Adjectives, (which the generality of readers may probably feel inclined to class among the Insolubilia de Aliaco) with a few extracts from Arabic Authors by way of illustration. In the following poetical panegyric on a departed Hero, extracted from the 20th Muqam of the Muqamat-ool-Hurcerce will be found a variety of Adjective Nouns, employed both as simple Attributes and complex Terms.

that would be ridiculous, but merely a companion with whom we are accustomed to sit, and corresponds precisely with the Latin Sodalis, "qu. sedales quod una sederent et essent."

I have extended this Note so far beyond the limits of the Text, that I cannot with propriety persevere in the discussion, yet I relinquish it with reluctance, for I consider it as one of very considerable importance, and one by no means satisfactorily explained by the Arabian Grammarians. The few remarks here offered may however enable the reader to carry on the enquiry himself. I have pointed out what appears to me the source of the error in the distinction drawn between the Active Participle and the simple Attribute, (which should properly be called the Verb Adjective and the Adjective Noun.) This if correct, will be found of importance, but much imformation is still wanting to elucidate the true nature of Arabic Adjectives, and this I may possibly attempt in a future work.

I shall therefore close this enquiry with a few premiscuous remarks (extracted from Ruzee and the Waffel) on the Active Participle and Attribute.

The Participle Active and Simple Attribute or Adjective, agree in denoting a Mode or manner of being; they assimilate also in form as to number and gender, and follow the same rule of construction with the single exception alluded to in the Commentary.

There are however some particulars in which they differ. The Adjective for instance, is derived from a Neuter Verb alone; the Participle Active may be derived from either a Neuter or an Active Verb. The Adjective denotes the perpetual, the Participle Active the temporal existence of an attribute in a given Object or Substantive Noun. The Adjective has seldom any resemblance in point of form to the Aorist of a Verb, as  $\ddot{d}_{1}$ ,  $\ddot{d}_{2}$ ,  $\ddot{d}_{3}$ , though some examples of this are known to occur as  $\ddot{d}_{3}$ ,  $\ddot{d}_{3}$ , on the contrary the Active Participle is always found conformable to the Aorist.

The word governed in the Objective Case by the Adjective, is never allowed to precede it in construction: that of the Active Participle may. We can therefore say زيد المان 'I am beating Zued,' but we could not say زيد وجهة حسن 'Zued has an ingenious countenance.'

There are other distinctions between them which I omit to record as unimportant.

But I repeat again that Arabic Syntax has nothing to do with Active Participles, and Adjective Nouns, as Complex Terms. They are employed in Grammar as Verb adjectives, and simple Attributes or Qualities, and are used descriptiveley, to define either the action in which a given Agent is employed, or the Quality with which a given Object is invested. As such they are necessarily adjected to Nouns, and although their grammatical office is to describe the Active or Passive state of a Substantive, they come afterwards like the Participles and Adjectives of other Languages, to stand for the Substances themselves.

In this manner are Passive Participles employed, for which means literally beloved, is used as a Substantive Noun to denote a Mistress. Worshipped, or God. Written, a Book. Possessed, a Slave or Servant. Joseph sent, a Prophet. Hidden, an Enigma Imprisoned, a Prisoner. &c. &c. upon which principle of Analysis, Horne Tooke has explained above 2,000 abstract terms in the English Language, a process that may be adduced as a very powerful argument in favor of Etymology, as it enables us to trace the true and legitimate character of Words.

It appears to me therefore upon the whole, that the distinction laid down by the Arabian Grammarians, between the Active Participle, or decided and the Simple Attribute, or decided with regard to the temporary or permanent nature of their qualities, is founded in error and misconception, and that the source of this error proceeds from confounding the different offices of these words together, that is, by comparing the Attribute or Appective when used as a complex term or Substantive Noun, with the Active Participle as a Verb Adjective, which being then considered as equivalent to the Aorist Tense of a Verb, may well enough have given rise to the transitory nature of its attribute, when applied to any given Agent or Object. For instance the word is a simple Attribute or Adjective, signifying properly familiar, but like our own Adjective it is used in the sense of a Complex Terms to denote an intimute or companion, a Familiar. If however we use the Active Participle, and say is a simple we convey a very different idea, as the Participle is equal to the Aorist and the phrase will mean that, Zued is sitting, which though indefinite as to time, has certainly something transitory in its nature as opposed to the complex Term which does not mean indeed a perpetual sitter,

It governs an Indefinite Noun in the Objective Case, as its Tumeez, ( ) or Noun of specification, which removes the uncertainty supposed to exist in the Integral Noun.

Two Minas of butter.

Twenty Dirhums.

Annotation.

With regard then to the transitory or permanent nature of the attributes expressed by either, there is not in my judgment any distinction whatever. They are both concrete Terms that differ only in the nature of the qualities they express. The Active Participle being the abbreviated sign of a complex idea, i. e. of a Subject and an Active Quality, as a Sentinel, or man who keeps watch; and the Adjective Noun, the sign of another complex idea, i. e. of a Subject and a Passive Quality as, a Miser, or man in whom the passion of avarice is supposed to exist. Compare all the Participles and Adjective Nouns in the Arabic Language (as complex Terms) and this distinction and no other I think will be found to characterize them; and indeed the reason appears obvious, for the Participles are derived from Active Verbs, the Adjective Nouns from Neuter, or from those that merely express corporeal or mental qualities in a passive state.

If we have occasion to mention an Object habitually employed in any given action, or whose profession is agency or business of any sort, we use the Active Participle as a Substantive Noun, and say مارة an Agent; وروي a Story-Teller: مارة a Husbandman: مارة a Servant, &c. and on the contrary, if we intend merely to describe an Object as possessing some particular Quality, we make use of the Adjective Noun, and say مارة a Virgin, (which is also an Adjective) Virgo Intacta.

This is effected either by its terminating in Tunween (رَبُوْنِ) or in what is considered equivalent to the Tunween, namely the Noon (رُبُونِ) of the Dual or Plural Number, or by its being followed by the مُنْصَافَ الْمُعَافِ الْمُعَافِي الْمُعَ

Annotation.

But in the character of Agents, they become complex Terms, expressing both qualities and subjects, and are therefore assumed as Subjects in a Proposition, not however with any reference to the transitory nature of those qualities, as the Arabian Grammarians would fain make us believe: on the contrary they denote the habitual posssesion of the attributes or Modes referred to, and signify that the objects are acustomed to do so and so; for what is a Tyrant but a man who is known to practice tyranny? Or a Sentinel, but a man whose duty it is to keep watch? Or a Beggar but he who subsists by, or whose trade is begging? In truth the Active Participle as a Substantive Noun invariably denotes in Arabic the habitual Doer of an action, though in its Verbal capacity it may perhaps be considered as temporary, as I have already remarked that the xerial is used like the Active Participle in the double capacity of a Substantive Noun, and a simple Attribute, resembling in application an Active Participle, as its name imports. In the first capacity it is used as a concrete or complex Term, to express both a subject and quality conjoined, as if a Miser or avaritious man (Miserus) a A Physician or one who professes the art of healing (Medicus.) A Stranger, or man from a foreign Country. (Peregrinus) &c. (where it may be observed the Latin adjectives have precisely the same force as the Arabic;) but these are all strictly speaking, simple Adjective Nouns, which indicate by their prescribed form, that they are meant to be added to other Nouns, "so that both together may answer the purpose of complex terms," and in this character as simple modificatives, they are the proper subject of grammar. Now between an Active Participle and a simple Adjective considered as Verbal and Analagous Governors, we have already pointed out the distinction, (a distinction that comprises the two grand divisions of Modes or manners of being, that is, the modes of action, and the modes of being without action; as the first attributes Action to a subject, and the second Quality, but neither with any adsignification of time,) and it now only remains to cosider in what it is that they differ when used as Complex Terms.

THE SEVENTH ANALOGOUS GOVERNOR.

The seventh is a Perfect or Integral Noun ( that is a Noun rendered perfect in itself, and independent of the relation of the Aorist Case.

Annotation.

The simple ATTRIBUTE or Adjective as expressing a passive quality, may perhaps have given rise to the idea of permanence, and the Active Participle as expressing an active quality, may also have led Grammarians to consider it as somewhat transitory, but in point of fact there is no such distinction between them, and the idea of duration whatever it may be, will in every possible case I imagine depend upon the nature of the VERB, as well as our own previous knowledge of the Suusect. For instance, the phrase אוני פיי פיי ליי דובע האוני האוני האוני ליי דובע ליי ' The Earth is moving,' conveys to every one acquainted with our astronomical System, an idea of permanence, as the quality of mobility predicated of the Earth, is known to be continual, but if we say a The Ball is moving, we shall then be understood to infer merely that the BALL is IN MOTION temporarily, and will again be at rest. Yet the Active Participle is the same in both examples and cannot be said to convey any idea of duration either temporary or permanent. It simply describes the action in which the Agent is employed with an indefinite relation as to Time. The very same may be observed of the ATTRIBUTE, for if we say, "THE IRON is nann," we shall be understood to speak of a quality co-existent and essential to the Substance Iron, and therefore permanent, but let us substitute another Adjective, and say the Iron is not, and the permanence of the quality immediately vanishes, for we all know that heat is accidental and not essential to Iron, and Irom this very idea of its transitory existence arose the common adage, Strike while the IRON is nor.

With the Active Participles and Attributes, considered as Substantive Nouns, Arabic Syntax has properly no concern. They assume then a different character in composition, and have the same government as common Substantive Nouns. For instance the words at a Sentinel; a Flier or Bird, and if an Asker or Beggar, are all active Participles in the character of Substantive Nouns, though they may be literally translated and used as Verbal Adjectives, for its means Tyrannising; if Keeping watch; will flying and if the flying and its flying and its mere nine month's quality, and like the attribute supposed to be conveyed by the Active Participle or Je (i) can only become permanent by the repetition of the action!

In other words, one denotes Action; the other denotes Quality, as والمعالم يعربه المعربة المعربة المعربة والمعالم المعربة والمعالم المعالم المعال

This distinction of permanent and transient qualities is commented upon by the Greek Philosophers. Aristotle has many passages of a similar nature to that under discussion, one of which Harris thus paraphrases in his Arrangements.

one thing to be observed, that some degree of permanence is always requisite; else they are not so properly Qualities, as incidental affections (Πάθη.) Thus we call not a man passionate because he has occasionally been angered, but because he is prone to frequent anger; nor do we say a man is of a palid or a rud.ly complexion, because he is red by immediate exercise, or pale by sudden fear, but when the paleness or redness may he called constitutional."

But first let us consider the true nature and use of an delider or Active Participle, which may enable us to judge of the propriety or impropriety of the distinction supposed to exist between it and the simple Adjective.

The Participle Active or deling is used in two ways. First as a Verb Adjective, and secondly as a Substantive Noun. As a Verb Adjective alone it is properly the subject of Grammar, and in this character it describes the state or action in which any object exists or is employed, as "

Zued is standing;" or "

Zued is beating Amr," and has therefore the precise force of the Aorist Tense of a Verb, governing in the one case the agent in the nominative, and in the other,

To this mode of objection I can easily conceive the answer of an Arabian Grammarian. He will' remark that certain objects are characterized by certain qualities, and consequently that although a female is not always pregnant, yet pregnancy is a quality habitual, or at all times attributable to her, in other words that the power of conception is co-existent with female nature. This is good, but it will not prove the point in question, for pregnancy can neither exist before, nor after certain periods, so that after all it is but a temporary, a transitory, in fact a

This general rule however regarding permanent Attributes is certainly erroneous, for to prove it true, we must prove that every Mode or Quality as expressed by the Attribute or Equal must be necessarily permanent in the object to which it refers, which if granted would confound accidental and essential Modes altogether, and produce as many strange phenomena in nature as in language. A poor man for instance would necessarily live and die a pauper, and if sick and gouty into the bargain, so much the worse, for no hope could be reasonably entertained of his cure. A Priegnant Woman ( ) might in vain look for an acconchement, for the quality being permanent, she could not consistently with the grammatical canon (or more properly speaking the grammatical Bull) expect the slightest change in her condition! yet seriously, the Arabian Grammarians maintain, that the Adjective or Attribute denotes properly its own perpetual existence in the Substantive Noun to which it is imputed, and the phrase is a coordingly denote that Anac reok

Annotation.

It must however be remembered that the proper subject of discussion in this work is the Musnum, and not the Ismo Musdum. It is this that the Arabian Grammarians include among the Analogous governors, ascribing to it the same regimen as its own Verb, which they say must in every case denote either transitive or intransitive Action. In this contracted sense it must be acknowledged that Mode cannot be considered as a strictly correlative term, for although it may be truly affirmed that every Arabic Musbur is a Mone, yet we cannot add conversely that every Mone is a Musbur; as the word Mode embraces every manner of being without exception, and a Grammatical Musbur includes only Modes of action, energy or being. These considerations led me to remark at the commencement of this note, that the true grammatical sense of an Arabic Infinitivo was not easily conveyed by any one word in our Language, and as my object in this enquiry is truth and nothing but truth, I deem it my duty candidly to state and examine every objection that occurs to me on the subject. But the word Mone, although far more comprehensive in signification than a grammatical Mushur, is yet clearly the term that the Arabian Grammarians had in view in the Definition and as it embraces, also the Ismo Musdun, which is only distinguished from the other by its want of verbal government, (being generally represented by the same word) I conceive it to be upon the whole the least exceptionable, if not the only just representative of an Arabic Infinitive.

But the word Event which is usually explained an incident, the consequence of an action, the conclusion or upshot of any thing, I confess I cannot but consider as inapplicable to any Arabic INFImore, being another name by which we indicate the action or efficacy of that feeling called Love; and hence we perceive the real cause of its possessing an active or transitive government, in contradistinction to the Ismo Musdur, which having no reference to action, has no other regimen than that of any common Substantive Noun.

Action indeed is applicable to every Infinitive, and this the Arabian Grammarians acknowledge by dividing all the verbs in the Language into two general Classes, which they term with and that is, verbs denoting Actions transitively, (the actio transiens of Logicians;) and verbs denoting actions inherent or inseparable, (actio immanens) which we are accustomed to call neuter; and hence we perceive the propriety of the Rule laid down in the Commentary, namely, that the laid of Active Farticiple may be derived from either a transitive or intransitive verb, which is saying in other words that every action supposes an agent.

This idea of action is conveyed in other languages by terminations, as beat-ing: verber-ens:

the Infinitive of a Neuter Verb. The essential distinction then, for some essential distinction there certainly is, between the Infinitive and the Infinitive's Noun or Ismo Musdur, is not in my judgment simple abstraction, that is, making the one an abstract Noun in opposition to the other; for as I have observed before they are both general* or abstract terms, but rather in the idea of action or energy conveyed by the Infinitive, which action, Locko observes, however various, and the effects almost infinite, is all included in the two ideas of thinking and motion. These are his words, "For action, being the great business of mankind and the whole matter about which all laws are conversant, it is no wonder, that the several Modes of thinking and motion should be taken notice of, the ideas of them observed, and laid up in the memory and have names assigned to them; without which, laws could be but ill made, or vice and disorder repressed. Nor could any communication be well had amongst men, without such complex ideas, with names to them: and therefore men have settled names and supposed settled ideas in their minds of Modes of Action, distinguished by their causes, means, objects, ends, instruments, time, place and other circumstances, &c."

The real distinction then between the Musnur and Ismo Musnur seems to be this. The Ismo Musnur signifies simply the name of a Mode without any reference to action or energy; the Musnur denotes a more complex idea and indicates indefinitely the action, energy or being of that Mode. Love for example is a name assigned to a certain feeling of delight, but Loving is something

How then shall we ascertain the true character of these words? What for instance is love as opposed to the general term loving? It is certain that they are both general terms descriptive of certain sensations of delight or Modes of pleasure in the mind, and as such may become either the subject or predicate of a Proposition, but this explains nothing, and if we ask the Arabian Grammarians for an explanation they answer us by pointing out a mere distinction in their application. becomes limited to a certain individual, but nothing more. If however we find it necessary to define the time in which the agent performed this Mode, this manner of action, we say Barclay walks—did walk, or will walk. Here we have the Mode modified, so as to express time and this we call the Mode indicative. If we desire the performance of the action, we say Walk, which is the Mode imperative and so on through all the other grammatical Modes or variations which we generally call Derivatives. Now these observations are equally applicable to every such word in the language, and consequently the term Mode is applicable to them also.

And so much for the Infinitive Mood, a term perfectly applicable to an Arabic Musdur. That the word Mode is the best representative of in its technical and Grammatical sense, I have endeavoured to prove, as well from the authority of the Arabian Grammarians themselves, as from the character of language in general, which being conversant about things or the manner of things, in other words about Substances and Modes, (the chief objects of our ideas,) would necessarily have two characteristic verbal Classes to represent them, and these appear to me to be Nouns and Inpinitive Modes.

COMMENTARY.

If none of the conditions above described accompany the PARTICIPLE ACTIVE it possesses no government, but is used simply as the oit to the Noun immediately following it.

EXAMPLE.

The beater of Zued yesterday was Amr.

If however the ACTIVE PARTICIPLE be made definite by the Article of it possesses the government of its Verb in every form of past, present or future time.

EXAMPLE.

اَلْصَّارِبُ عَبِّرًا ٱلْمَسِ زَيْدُ He who beat Amr yesterday was Zued.

Annotation.

signifying more directly the notion of Action: and then the other varieties of the Verb should be but the inflexions of this. Others question whether the infinitive mode be a Verb or no, because in the Greek it receives articles as a Noun. Scaliger concludes it to be a Verb but will not admit it to be a Mode. Vossius adds, that though it be not Modus in Actu, yet it is Modus in Potentia, All which difficulties, (mighty difficulties indeed!) will be most clearly stated by asserting it to be a Substantive Participle.

But in the name of common sense, where lies the difficulty or impropriety of the term? Are not the chief objects of our thoughts things or Substances and their Manners of being? Are not the words walking, flying, learning, dancing, sailing, sitting, &c. &c. certain Modes or manners of being, applicable to certain objects? Are not these manners of being, general words representing general ideas, and therefore applicable to many particular things? May we not talk of the walking of a Man; the walking of a Horse, the walking of a Dog, and so on ad infinitum? Is not walking then a mere mode or manner of being, applicable to an indefinite number of ebjects and consequently particular to none? Is it not therefore indefinite? It expresses no time, no person, no place, in fact nothing but a certain manner of motion; is it not therefore a Mode expressing a general idea, and therefore an Indefinite an Infinitive Mode?

And now having the Mode termed walking for instance, a word expressive of a manner of being, applicable to a great variety of objects, if we wish to limit its general application we apply it to the Infinitive Mood of a Verb, that is an indefinite or absolute Mode or manner of being, as opposed to Nouns'denoting Substances, and this no doubt being a very important discovery I may perhaps claim the privilege of inserting a Q. E. I!

The Revd. Alexander Crombie, Author of the Etymology and Syntax of the English Language (a work in my opinion of very considerable merit) has adopted without consideration the vulgar error respecting the Infinitive mood, and says—"I concur decidedly with these Grammarians, who are so far from considering the Infinitive as a distinct Mood, that they entirely exclude it from the appellation of verb." Had Mr. Crombie taken the treuble to judge for himself he would have decided differently, for he could not be ignorant that all such words as running, leaping, flying, &c. &c. were Modes,-Modes of Action, but indefinite as to time, place, and other circumstances, and consequently Infinitive Modes. This is surely a very plain and simple matter of fact, and yet Horne Tooke himself that Hermes of critical sagacity has misunderstood the term mode and says, "The Infinitive appears plainly to be what the Stoics called it, the very Verb itself, pure and uncompounded with the various accidents of Mood, of number, of gender, of person, &c. &c." and Bishop Wilkins proposes to alter the name. "That which is called the Infinitive Mode should according to the true analogy of speech, be styled a Participle Substantive. There hath been formerly much dispute among some learned men, whither the notion called the Infinitive Mode ought to be reduced according to the Philosophy of speech. Some would have it to be the prime and principal Verb, as

It must be connected with a Subject (أَلَيْمَا) preceding it in the order of construction to which it forms the Predicate, as in the examples already given, or with a qualified noun (هَوْمُونُونُ) to which it will be the attributive, (هَوْمُ وَالْمُونُ ).

in which these are altogether promiscuous, as, to read. "QUALITAS, Verborum aut finita est, aut infinita: finita est, quæ notat certam personam, certum numerum, certum tempus, ut, lego, scribo. Infinita est in qua hæc universa confusa, ut, legere." Vid. p. Consent. De Duabus Orationis part. Nomine et Verbo.

And hence the Verb in this form or mode was called Impersonal, Infinite, and by the Greeks επαξέμφατον or Indefinite.* "Adeo, says Macrobius, autem his modes absolutum nomen rerum est, ut in significationibus rerum, quas Aristoteles numero decem κατηγορίας vocat, quatuor per ἀπαρέμφατον properantur, κεῖσθαι, έχειν, ποιειν, πάσχειν. Græco vocabulo propterea dicitur ἀπαρέ μφατον, quod nullum mentis indicat affectum." Vid. Macrob. De Differ. Græc. Lat. Verbi. p. 325.

This then is the result of our Analysis. An Arabic stripped of the learned language of definition in which it has been cloathed by Eastern Grammarians, turns out to be literally and strictly

THIRD ANALOGOUS GOVERNOR.

The third is an ACTIVE PARTICIPLE, (()) which possesses like the Infinitive the same regimen as its verb, that is, if derived from a neuter Verb it governs an agent in the Nominative as "

The Father of Zued is standing;" and if from a transitive verb it governs both a Nominative and an Accusative.

EXAMPLE.

. آبُدُ مَا رِبُ غَالَ مُد عَبْراً Zued's servant is beating Amr.

Its government is guided by certain conditions.

The sentence in which the Active Participle is employed must include either present or future time, with one of which it must necessarily be accompanied in order to complete its affinity to the Aorist tense of a Verb; for as it already resembles the Aorist in the number of its letters and vowel points, it acquires by this addition of present or future time a similitude in signification also.

Annotation.

"The Infinitive says Dr. Beattie, if you please may be called a form, but a mood it certainly, is not!" Now what is a mode but a form or manner of being abstractedly considered, a term synonymous with quality or accident, the ποιότης of the ancient Philosophers as opposed to circle or substance, of which the Noun and Infinitive were used as the verbal Representatives? The whole source of the error proceeded from not attending to this original distinction, and by taking the word mode in its relative instead of its absolute signification, and to this perhaps we may trace the partial and consequently erroneous definition of it by Gaza in his Grammar L. IV; which Harris has unwittingly commended—βάλημα, ἐθ' ἔν πάθημα ψυχῆς, διὰ Φανῆς συμανέμενου.—Α polition or affection of the Soul, signified through some voice, or sound articulate. See Hermes, p. 140.

The QUALITY of Verbs says the Roman Grammarian Consentius is either finite, or infinite.

FINITE as denoting a certain person, a certain number, or a certain time, as I read, I write. INFINITE,

202

Note. The above rules of construction are only applicable to the Infinitive of a transitive Verb: when it happens to be neuter, it is constructed only in one way, namely in the relation of the agrist case with an Agent.

The Agent of the Infinitive can never be concealed, nor can the Infinitive itself be preceded in composition by its  $\int_{-\infty}^{\infty} e^{-s} ds$  or governed word.

Annotation.

This is absolutely capable of demonstration, for if we compare the nine subdivisions of ATTRIBUTE, with the common derivative forms or modifications of an Arabic Musdur; which are produced by the mere change of vowel points, or by the addition or elision of certain letters to and from the mode in its radical form, we shall find them agree in almost every particular. For example, quality abstractedly considered will be represented by the and concretely by the addition by the quality and relation by the where by the and position by the passion by discounting and position when by the last where by the last where by the position by the last and habit by certain properties of the conjugations which clothe the object with the sense of the radical. I do not pretend however to assert that this comparison is precisely accurate, indeed I have no doubt it might easily be improved, * my object is merely to shew that an Arabic infinitive is capable of expressing by its derivative forms the entire series of predicaments or specific relations into which the Attribute or mode has been divided by Philosophers, and this I think I have effected. Aristotle has enumerated but four divisions of the Attribute namely, Action, Passion, Habit and Position, which he also comprises in the analyter party or Infinitive.

Here then we discover the true origin and sense of the Infinitive mood or mode, a term familiar to every Schoolboy, yet strangely misunderstood by the most learned Grammarians. Sanctius, Scioppins, Perizonius and the Messieurs De Port Royal deny the propriety of the expression altogether, and Scaliger says the Infinitive is not a mood in act but in power, to which Vossius agrees.† "Assentior autem Jul. Scaligero, qui actu modum essenegat, contrà quam vulgus non modo semidoctum putat, &c."

And hence I draw the following conclusions, that all modes in their absolute and Indefinite capacities are general terms or arbitrary names, affixed to certain combinations of simple ideas which have their existence only in the mind. That every mode denotes an attribute, and that every attribute is capable of suntry modifications as to means, object, end, instrument, time, place, and other circumstances, including in fact the nine sub-divisions or Post-Predicaments into which this comprehensive genus has been distributed.

The result of this comparison may perhaps convince us that the Arabians have borrowed their general notions of Science from the Greeks, and that their nouns and infinitives, or their names of modes, comprise the two great philosophical divisions of subject and accident, from which the celebrated categories of Aristotle have been formed. This is indeed a fact that will hardly be disputed. Every system of Arabic logic sets out with this twofold arrangement, and although their modern Grammarians have not adverted to this circumstance in their enquiries into the true nature and definition of the parts of speech, I think it is evident that this must have been the original cause of the present grammatical classification. "The multitude of ideas ' says Harris,' treasured up in the human mind and which, bearing reference to things, are expressed by words, may be arranged and circumscribed under the following characters. They all denote either substance or Attribute."

This Division of words and things into two general Classes is taken from the Sordista of Plato, and is thus given by Sanctius in his Minerva. "Quicquid enuntiatur, aut est permanens, at Arbor, Darum; aut fluens, at Currit, Dormit. Res permanentes sive constantes rocamus, quaram natura diu

The Infinitive (مَصْدُر) has the same government as its own verb; if therefore the verb be neuter it governs the Agent in the Nominative.

The standing of Zued astonished me.

ness, Blackness or Whiteness, Motion or Rest, are the accidents of a Bowl; for these may be all changed, and yet the body remain a Bowl still: Learning, Justice, Folly, Sickness, Health, are the accidents of a Man: Motion, Squareness, or any particular Shape or Size, are the accidents of Body:
—So Hope, Fear, Wishing, Assenting and Doubting, are accidents of the Mind, though Thinking in general seems to be essential to it.' These are all Arabic Infinitives.

"Modes belong either to Body or to Spirit, or to both. Modes of Body belong only to matter, or to corporeal Beings; Modes of Spirit belong only to minds; such as Knowledge, Assent, Dissent, Doubting, Reasoning, &c. Modes which belong to both have been sometimes called mixed Modes or human Modes, for these are only found in human nature, which is compounded both of body and spirit; such are Sensation, Imagination, Passion," &c. See Watts's Logic.

as above detailed will hardly I think be disputed, and that this precise word is peculiarly applicable to the Musdur or Infinitive we have the Grammarian's own words as authority ( ) ( Know that by the Musdur is meant Mode." This Mode he adds is necessarily dependant on some Subject for its existence as well as for other subordinate distinctions of

Now it is certain that the arguments of the Busrah Grammarians in support of the Crammarians as the Root, are absolute and of general application, while those of the Grammarians of Koofah for the in are confined to the rules of permutation alone, from which no general principle can be inferred. But if no other proof were necessary to establish the original of a word, then it would follow that it is originally in and it is originally in and the different persons of these Verbs, such as it is and it is and it is the branches, which no one will assert.

the body; knowledge, wit, folly, love, doubting, judging, are modes of the mind; for the one cannot subsist without body, and the other cannot subsist without mind."*— "We mean by the word says 'Ruzee,' a thing existing in or by some other thing, as beating, going, extension and contraction, &c." So far the terms are clearly identified.

Further. "Modes are either essential or accidental. An essential Mode or Attribute, is that which belongs to the very Nature or Essence of the Subject wherein it is; and the Subject can never I have the same Nature without it, such as Roundness in a Bowl, Hardness in a Stone, Softness in Water, Vital Motion in an Animal, Solidity in Matter, Thinking in a Spirit:" All these Modes are comprehended in the Definition and are all Arabic Infinitives and the Sources of Derivation."

Again. "Au Accidental Mode, or an Accident, is such a Mode, as is not necessary to the being of a thing, for the Subject may be without it, and yet remain of the same Nature that it was before; or it is that Mode, which may be separated or abolished from its Subject: So Smoothness or Rough-

† The word Event is merely applicable, agreeably to the authority of Lucretius to accidental modes, or to those accidents which may be absent or present without destroying the subject,

Annotation.

The word in Arabic is precisely equivalent to the Hebrew will and means literally, to become new, and transitively as an augmented triliteral to make new or produce, in which sense its prototype is frequently found in the Bible middle of the Kingdom there," or rather as I should think make a new kingdom, establish royalty there. This is the original sense of the word in which as applicable to an Arabic infinitive is explained as follows by the Grammarian Ruzee:

We mean by the word at thing existing in or by some other thing, whether extrinsical as beating and going; or intrinsical as extension and contruction." If the reader will take the trouble to compare this with the definition of a mode as given above by Locke, and of its various divisions as recorded by Watts in his Logic, he will find I think the term and mode in every respect reciprocal.

Let us compare them in a few places. "The very being of a Mode depends on some substance for its subject, in which it is, or to which it belongs; so motion, shape, quantity, weight, are modes of

The Grammarians of Busrah call the without reference to a Verb; and the signification in itself, without reference to a Verb; and the the branch or stem, because it is not independent in itself, but has reference to some Noun. On the other hand the Grammarians of Koofuh call the root, and the other hand the Grammarians of the root, and the other hand the derivative, because the rules of permutation to which the latter may be subjected, depend entirely on the permutations of the

Annotation.

I shall endeavour to make appear, is a much more comprehensive term than event: It embraces all attributes when considered separately from the beings to which they are attributable; all essential and inward properties as well as outward respects and relations, and reaches to actions themselves as well as manners of actions.* On the contrary the word event means little more strictly speaking, than the end, conclusion or termination of an affair, and this also is the precise Definition of it as given by Cicero; "Eventus est alicujus exitus negotii." May it not therefore be concluded that the word event, even in its most comprehensive acceptation, signifies rather the effect of action, than action itself, and that consequently it cannot be considered as a legitimate representative of action in the definition of an Arabic Infinitive?

This however is a question of too much importance to be hastily decided upon. It involves a very minute inquiry into the true nature and definition of the parts of speech, and if fully and satisfactorily conducted, into the general principles of universal Grammar. An analysis of this nature will not indeed be expected in the limited space allotted to a note, but a short view of the subject may be interesting, and this I purpose to submit,

My own opinion is that the most unexceptionable name for an Arabic Infinitive is a mode or manner of being; I mean a mode in its philosophical acceptation as explained by Locke, and since adopted I believe by every writer on ontology. "Modes I call such complex ideas, which, however compounded contain not in them the supposition of subsisting by themselves, but are considered as dependences on, or affections of Substancies; such as are ideas signified by the words triangle, gratitude, murder, &c." But in order to justify the application of this term to an Arabic Infinitive, it may be necessary to enter into some detail.

OF THE GOVERNMENT TERMED ELD OR ANALOGOUS.

The Class termed ويكاسري or Analogous contains seven Governing Powers.

FIRST ANALOGOUS GOVERNOR.

Of the Analogous Governors the first is a Verb Universally, whether neuter or transitive, and in any tense past or agrist; for every Verb governs an Agent in the Nominative, as تَا رَيْنَ 'Zued stood.' عَارِيْنَ 'Zued struck;' but if the Verb be transitive it governs an object in the accusative also, as المَنْ بَارُانِيْنَ عُبُراً وَكُولُوا اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ اللهُ الله

The Agent can never precede the Verb in the order of construction but the Object may, as زَيْدَ اضَرَبْتُ ; nor can the Agent be omitted in composition, which is not the case with the Object which may be optionally omitted.

SECOND ANALOGOUS GOVERNOR.

المُصَدِّرُ

The second is the Infinitive ( ) which is defined to be the Name of a Mode, ( ) and is termed ווביל or the Source, being the source from which the Verb is conceived to flow.

Annotation.

The true Grammatical sense of the term as employed in the Definition of an Arabic Infinitive, is not easily conveyed by any one word in the English Language. Mr. Lumsden who well knew its true nature and force has rendered it event, and to his opinions on every important question of Arabic Science and general Grammar, the profoundest respect is justly due; but the word pooh! said the Merchant, I look upon this as a mere trifle. He accordingly purchased the boy and took him into his service, and finding him expert and skilful in duty, placed him at the head of all his servants. But it happened sometime after, that the Merchant accompanied by some of his friends went out to his garden, and sent the boy home about sunset to bring him his ass, but the boy as soon as he approached his master's house rent his clothes, and threw dust upon his head, and exclaimed, O alas, alas, my master! the lord of my bounty!-the Merchant's wife concluded from his appearance that some misfortune had happened to him, and said, alas, boy, what is the meaning of this outcry? Ah! replied he, the roof of the house has fallen in upon my master and crushed him to pieces with all the other Merchants. The wives of the Merchants who happened to be invited there by the lady of the house, as soon as they heard the report of the slave beat their faces in despair, and began to run towards the garden, but the boy got before them and entered it tearing his clothes like a frantic person and throwing dust on his head, in the same manner as he had done before the women. The Merchants surprised at his appearance asked the cause of his distress. Ah! I believe he replied, a spark of fire escaped from the hands of one of the maid-servants and has set fire to your house, and I do not think there is a single child that has not been burned to death, nay not one even of the maid-servants nor one of your wives. The Merchants hearing this ran out all distracted, one weeping for his sister and wife, the other for the daughter of his relation, but when they got about half way home, both parties met on the road and every one saw his friend safe, and discovered that the whole was a trick played upon them by the lying valet. What has tempted you said his master to this act? Do you not know replied the boy that I was bound to tell you every year a great lie and a little. one? Well said the Merchant and under what class must I place the present? Is this the large lie or the little one? O this is the little lie, replied the boy, the large one you shall have bye and bye! This little lie said the Merchant will answer my purpose. - I now give you your liberty, so set out, and find some other person of more consequence to practice your large lie upon.

Annotation.

The List are distinguished from other Verbs by the following peculiarity, namely that the Agent and Object with which they are connected, may be expressed by the conjunctive personal pronouns, and both be the same Individual, as Linew myself, List Thou didst know thyself; which form of construction cannot be applied to any other Class of Verbs such as cannot be example, but if we wish to express the reflective sense, a distinct Noun must be introduced for the Object, as Listruck myself. In this particular respect the Greek seems to have an advantage over the Arabic, having a peculiar form of verbs in the middle voice to express this double relation independent of any adscititious Noun or Pronoun, as Explaint Istruck myself, &c.

The following Story will illustrate the use of the different verbs of this Class.

حكاية

مُرَّبَعْضُ النَّجُ رِعَلَى سُوْقِ الْعَبِيْ لِلهِ فَرَأَيُ نَجَّا سَا فِي يَدِهِ أَنْ نَ عُلامٍ يَبِيْهُ فَهُ وَيَعُولُ مَنْ يَشْتَرِ الْعُلَامَ الْاَدِيْبَ النَّبِيْبَ الْكَاتِبَ الْاَمِيْنَ بِإِلَّهُ يَعِيمُ فَهُ وَيَعُولُ مَنْ يَشْتَرِ الْعُلَامَ الْاَدِيْبَ النَّبِيْبَ الْكَاتِبَ الْاَمِيْنَ بِإِلَّهُ يَعِيمُ فَعَالَ النَّاجِرُ إِنِي اَنْطُنْكَ يَا هُذَا * جُنُونًا فَا قَالَ مُلكَ عَلَى مَا فَكُرْتَ وَيُومِ مِنَ النَّا عِبُولِيْنِي اَنْظُنْكَ يَا هُذَا * جُنُونًا فَا قَالَ اللَّا عَلَى مَا فَكُرُتُ وَيَعْمُ اللَّهُ عَلَى مَا لَكُونُ اللَّهُ عَلَى اللَّهُ اللَّهُ وَالْ اللَّهُ عَلَى مَا لَكُونُ اللَّهُ عَلَى اللَّهُ اللْهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللللَّهُ اللللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللْمُلْمُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللللللْمُ اللللْمُ اللَّ

Another Object is therefore added to these Verbs by this Humza of increase, which possesses the property termed ثر (and is that by which the Agent or Nominative to a Verb puts the Object in possession of the sense of the radical.)

The meaning therefore of the first example is المنافعة عمر المنافعة عمر

أَزْعَيْتُ أَوْجُدتُ أَخُلْتُ أَحْسَبُتُ أَظْنَنْتُ

Annotation.

The Grammarian Ruzer, makes مَلْمُ synonymous with مَا أَعُلَمُ in every respect, and says the phrases مَا مُعَالَى اللهُ عَلَى اللهُ الله

The government of these Verbs is suspended but not destroyed, first, by the introduction of the Particle termed المنت تريدة و الابتداء I imagined Zued was standing; secondly by the Negative Particle x as المنت تريدة و الله ترابع الله المنافعة ال

I doubted whether Zued was standing with you or Amr.

This suspension of government being enused by the immediate Agency of some word is termed by the Arabian grammarians into that the government of the Verbs is not altogether destroyed by the construction they alledge the following argument as a proof; namely that if another Sentence follow the one to which the Particle is prefixed, the government will be preserved, as

I thought that Zued was standing and Amr going.

Their government therefore or non-government is equally proper, though some Grammarians are of opinion that when they intervene between their Objects, their government had better be preserved, but when they follow them, it had better be cancelled.

If to the Verbs and and and a Humza be prefixed, they become transitive to three Objects or Accusatives.

EXAMPLES.

I made Zued know that Amr was excellent, وَا عَالَمُتُ زَبُدًا عَالَمًا فَاضِلًا اللهُ ال

Annotation.

Verbs of sense in Greek generally govern a genitive, but the Verb oxlowze like in Arabic, requires an Accusative which Mr. Jones has endeavoured to account for philosophically in his Greek Grammar. See p. 275.

The example produced by the Commentator to prove that the Verb (s) is sometimes used to express ocular in opposition to mental vision, appears to me very singularly inapplicable. The entire passage from the Qooran is as follows:

Ho (Abraham) said, O my dear son, verily I saw in a dream, that I should slay thee as a sacrifice, consider therefore what thou thinkest I should do. He replied, O my Father do what thou art ordered to do.' A word cannot surely be placed in a more unequivocal light than in the above Sentence: perhaps the Commentator intended to quote the preceding example, which would have been less objectionable.

When these Verbs happen to intervene between their Objects, or when they follow them, their government may be optionally omitted.

EXAMPLES.

﴿ زَيْكُ طَنَنْتُ قَامِمٌ زَيْكً طَنْنَتُ قَامِهُ زَيْكٌ قَامِمُ طَنَنْتُ زَيْكٌ قَامِمُ طَنَنْتُ رَيْكً اَقَامَهُ اَطَنَنْتُ

Is it all gravity to shock?

Is it to make the people stare?

And be thyself a laughing stock?

2.

When I behold thy little feet,
After thy beard obsequious run,
I always fancy that I meet,
Some father followed by his son.

3,

A man like thee scarce e'er appear'd,

A beard like thine—Where shall we find it?

Surely thou cherishest thy beard,

In hopes to hide thyself behind it.'?

The Verb ; is supposed to be used in the sense of doubt or uncertainty in the following example from the Qooran, as,

They suppose (the day of judgment) is distant.

It is used in a sense termed by the Arabian Grammarians to denote vision in a dream and believe to denote vision in a dream and requires after it two Objects in the Accusative, as in the following Sentence from the Quoran:

It seemed unto me in my dream, that I pressed out wing الني أمَّ أني أعطر حَمَّراً (from grapes.)

The Verbs of this Class do not admit of the retrenchment of one of the two Objects in composition being but as one word, and the sense of both collectively forming as it were the منعول به or Object of a transitive Verb, that is the radical sense of the second Object or its Infinitive, may be considered as connected with the first in the relation of the aorist case, as the sense of the sentence عَلَيْتُ وَيُلُونُ اللهُ وَاللهُ وَاللهُ

Annotation.

I was sure that virtue and liberality were the best species of trafic.

ا عُمَّا أَبَالَ عَطُوفًا I was confident that your father was benevolent.

They well knew that the only place of refuge was die الله الآالية with Gon.

Or in the following Jeu d'esprit attributed to المنافقة المنافقة

ON A VERY LITTLE MAN CALLED DAVID, WITH A VERY LARGE BEARD,

These lines are very ingeniously versified by Dr. Carlyle in his Specimens of Arabian Poetry, for the learned Professor has not only preserved the sense but the very spirit of the Epigram, by lengthening out his version to an extent as disproportionate to the original as little David's beard.

And مَ مَ أَصَدُ in the sense of اَصَدُتُ as, I found or discovered the lost.

These three Verbs when used as above are transitive only to one Object or Accusative.

The Verb : is sometimes used to denote doubt and sometimes certainty, as,

- 1. الله غَفُورًا رَحِيبًا I believed that God was merciful and forgiving.
- 2. الشَّيْطَانَ شَكُورًا I doubted whether the devil was a thanksgiver!

The Verb رَأَيْتُ is sometimes used to denote perception with the eye, as in the following sentence from the Qooran.

کَانْظُرْ مَا نَ ا تَرَيِّی Consider therefore what thou see'st, or rather thinkest (I should do.)

is sometimes used synonymously with عَارَتُ as,

There are many other Verbs besides the above which govern two Objects in the Accusative, but which for the sake of brevity I omit recording: the following however from their affinity to those under discussion may merit insertion:

Annotation.

That there are many Verbs of this Class besides those recorded in the Commentary, the following will demonstrate.

2. Know for certain, as,

Know that the preservation of the soul, is by subduing وَعَلَمْ شَعَارُ النَّفْسِ قَهْرِعَدُو هَا the passions.

3. إِنَا اللهِ found, as,

Ruzze however remarks that the Verbs ( ) when synonymous with and wife the Imperative synonymous with ale I do not govern two Objects in the Accusative Case, but require after them a Sentence preceded by the Particle (1) as,

I knew that you were standing.

آعُدُا لَغُيْ رَشُدُ اللَّهِ Know assuredly that after error comes piety.

4. He numbered or calculated, as,

Do not reckon on God as your companion in affluence وَ لَا تَعْدُ دِ ٱلْمُوْلَىٰ شَرِ يَكُلُ فَي ٱلْغَنَا but in poverty and distress.

The Verb with however if derived from its suspicion or accusation does not require a second Object or Acusative.

CLASS THIRTEENTH.

The thirteenth class contains seven Verbs termed, if if if if or VERBS of the MIND, and are so called because they have their source in the mind and come not under the cognizance of the senses. They are also called Verbs of DOUBT and CERTAINTY, some of them denoting doubt and some certainty, and precede a Sentence consisting of a subject and predicate to both of which they give if or govern them in the Objective Case as double Objects.

Annotation.

It must be obvious that under the head of (which signify literally Actions of the Soul with reference to the understanding, and grammatically Verus denoting the operations of the mind or intellect) may be included a variety of other kindred Verbs besides those recorded in the Commentary; for Action which is here meant spiritual action, being a Genus, necessarily embraces all the various operations of the mind, and as these operations of the mind or modes of thinking, are but different kinds or species of the same genus, the verbs expressive of these actions must partake of one common character as to sense, and might therefore be expected to fall under one common rule of government. This has not escaped the notice of the Arabian Grammarians who, in some of their larger works, have discussed the subject with great ingenuity and have enumerated a variety of Verbs possessing a similar government to those recorded in the text; but as their arguments are very diffuse and scattered through many parts of their works, I shall save myself the trouble of collecting and translating them, and endeavour to supply the defect by presenting the reader with a short extract from the celebrated Essay of Bishop Wilkins towards a real character, and Philosophical Language, which containing a very precise view of the different Actions of the Understanding (رَفْعَا لُرُ الْقَالُوبِ) may not be deemed inapplicable to the Class of Verbs now under discussion.

Action as a Predicament he divides into four kinds.

I. SPIRITUAL. II. CORPOREAL. III. MOTION. IV. OPERATION.

The genus of Spiritual Actions he divides into two Classes, those that belong to God by which are meant only his transient actions which are terminated in the creatures, such as creation,

STORY

The wife of a niggardly attorney happened to be seized with a longing after fish, and expressed her desire one day to her husband. O what execrable food said the attorney is fish, and how vile a thing is fish for food! for its F is fatality; its I insipidity; its S sickness, and its H horror! The good woman however was determined to satisfy her longing, and accordingly having pawned her carring unknown to him, purchased some fish, but in the very act of enjoying it, who pops in upon her but old Pinchpenny, who seeing her eating cried outwhat is that you are eating my dear! Nothing but a little fish replied the wife, which a neighbour woman has sent me! Oh ho! cried Muckworm, then allow me to join your mess immediately, for most excellent food is fish, and fish is truly excellent for food, for its F is fatness; its I impletion; its S salubrity and its H hilarity.* What a vile describer of fish you are said his wife, for yesterday you abused it and now again you are praising it. Nay my dear said the attorney I am an admirable definer of fish, for I divide it into two classes. One that is purchased with money, and this I hold to be the bad class: the other that is got gratuitously and this I consider the good class. His wife laughed at his answer and was surprised at the readiness of his reply.

* Or agreeably to the original word its first letter is poison, its second sickness, and its third affliction; and again, its 1st is falness, its 2d enjoyment and its 3d competency.

The or Noun Particularized by Praise, may be either preceded or followed by a Noun agreeing with it in gender and number, and in the Objective Case as the in it.

EXAMPLES.

What an excellent man is Zued! حَبْذَارَجُلَّا زَيْدُ What an excellent horseman is Zued!

Annotation.

The Verbs of this Class are included in the following little Story.

معكا يته

The Verb نعف is never separated in practice from is and is therefore written المستعدد المستع

The Construction (اعراب) of the of-this Verb is the same as that of in both of the cases already detailed, but its Agent and Noun Particularity by Praise, do not necessarily agree in gender and number.

EXAMPLES.

حَبَّدَازَيْدُ	Sing. mas. O excellent Zued
حَبَّذَازَيْدَانِ	Dual mas.
حَبَّذَازَيْدُوْنَ	Plural mas.
حَبِّذَا هِنْدُ	Sing. fem.
حَبِّدًا هِنْدَانِ	Dual fem.
حَبْذَاهِنْدَاتُ	Plur, fem.

Annotation.

The concealed Pronoun mentioned in the Text as the Agent of the three first Verbs of Praise and censure answers in all such cases to the Pronoun it in English, and is therefore rendered in Arabic by a Noun in [the Objective Case. The phrase in Arabic by a Noun in [the Objective Case. The phrase in therefore resolves itself thus, if it was good.' What was good?—'The man (I) Zued.' As opposed to a Pronoun expressed, it is called concealed or implied, and its reference being to some object presented merely to the intellect for the first time, in opposition to the other Pronouns which rerbally refer to an object perceived before, its relation is properly termed by the Arabs which seems to agree with the remark of Apollonius as quoted by Harris, "That some indications are a ceular, and some are mental." This part the twee decisions, the first time of Apollonius as quoted by Harris, "That some indications are a ceular, and some are mental."

The fourth is with is affixed, the first letter being marked either Futha or Zumma; originally with the second letter Muzmoom, which being afterwards rendered quiescent the two homogeneous letters coalesce under the sign Idgham. This rule is applicable to with its first letter Muftooh, but if Muzmoom, the Vowel point Zumma is transferred to the second letter, and the two homogeneous letters coalesce as before,

COMMENTARY.

النجيت الرَّاتُ عَدَّدَ النَّالَ عَلَى الْمُرَاتُ الْمُراتُ ال

2. The second is in a Verb of Censure; originally like is (on the third conjugation of triliteral radicals.) The Futha of the first letter is changed into Kusra to coincide with the vowel point of the second, which is afterwards rendered quiescent in order to lighten or facilitate the articulation. The various rules applicable to the Agent of this Verb in construction, as well as to its or Noun Particularized by Censure, are precisely the same as those already recorded of the Agent and its of its

EXAMPLES.

تُسُورُ الرَّجُلُ زَيْنَ Zued was a bad man.

Zued the owner of the horse was a bad man.

Annotation.

. أَبُو مُوسَىٰ جَدُّ كَ نَعْمَ جَدَّا لَهُ . وَشَيْخُ الْحَيْ خَالَكَ نَعْمَ خَدَّ لَا عَهَ

And Shuekh-ool-Hueya your uncle, how excellent a grandfather!

These Verbs assume occasionally the Particle ( as an affix, as Line; which Particle sometimes coalesces with as in the following examples from the Quoran.

BOOK SECOND,

And sometimes a Pronoun concealed rendered by an indefinite Noun in the Objective Case,

EXAMPLE.

How good was (he) the man Zued.

The concealed Pronoun in such instances refers simply to an object in the mind termed, (مَعْهُونُ نَهُدُ فَيْ ).

The Noun Particularized by Praise () is sometimes omitted in the Sentence if the defect can be supplied by the context.

EXAMPLE.

الْعَبْدُ أَيْ أَيُّوبُ How good a servant was he, namely Job!

The verse of the Qooran from which the example is taken being in praise of Job.

The Noun Particularized by Praise and the Agent must agree in gender and number

EXAMPLES.

نَعْمَ الرَّجُلُ زَيْدُ السَّحُلُ زَيْدُ السَّجُلُ زَيْدُ السِّجُلُ زَيْدُ السِّجُلُ زَيْدُ السِّجَالُ زَيْدُ السِّعَالُ زَيْدُ السِّعَالُ زَيْدُ وَنَ عَمَ الرِّجَالُ زَيْدُ وَنَ

Annotation.

The Nouns Particularized by Praise of Censure sometimes though rarely precede their Verbs, as عَبْرُوبِيْسُ الْرَجِلُ ' Zued is a good man.' أَوْ يَعْمُ الْرَجِلُ ' Amr is a bad man.' The Agent in such cases is rendered definite by the Article Ji though sometimes the Pronoun is concealed and made by an indefinite noun, as in the following example, the Vowel mark of the second letter, which is then rendered quiescent to lighten or facilitate the pronunciation leaving which is a Verb of Praise.

محکم دلائل وبراہین سے مزین، متنوع ومنفرد موضوعات پر مشتمل مفت آن لائن مکتب

The Agent (فاعلی) of the Verb نعم is sometimes a general term (اَلْاَلْمُمُ الْمُواْلِيَّةُ الْمُوْلِيَّةُ الْمُوْلِيِّةُ الْمُوْلِيِّةُ الْمُوْلِيِّةُ اللّهُ الللّهُ اللّهُ ا

EXAMPLE.

يَعْمَ الرَّجْلُ زَيْدٌ Zned was a good man.

The word الرَّفِي is here مَرْفُوع or in the Nominative Case, as the Agent of Zued (زَيْنَ) is the Noun Particularised by Praise (مَخْصُونَ بِالْمُنْ) and being the Subject of the Proposition is also in the Nominative Case; and the Predicate, preceding it in the order of construction.

Or Zued may be in the Nominative Case as the Predicate, the Subject of the Proposition being a Pronoun understood; the order will then be.

He was a good man namely Zued.

The Proposition by the first analysis consisting of one, and by the second of two Sentences.

The Agent of is sometimes a Noun connected in the relation of the Aorist Case with another Noun made definite by the Article i.

EXAMPLE.

تعَمَّ مَا الْغُرَسِ لَيْكُ Zued the owner of the borse is a good man:

but the first is the original one. The two first forms are used by the tribe of Bunoo Tumeom, and the second more frequently than the rest when employed to denote praise or censure. This distinction agreeably to the authority of Mooburrud and Seebuweh is observed by the Arabs in general.

Then may heaven my mistress defend,

Though still she my vows should disdain;

Though her cruelty hasten my end,

And my heart break indeed with its pain.*

CLASS TWELFTH.

The twelfth Class contains four Verbs termed The twelfth Class contains four Verbs termed or Verbs of Praise and Censure.

1. Of these the first is نعر originally زعر with the first letter marked Futha, and the second Kusra: the Futha is changed into Kusra to coincide with

Annotation.

As and assume Ta or the mark of the Feminine Gender, they are generally considered as Verbs, but certain Grammarians of the schools of Koofuh will have them Nouns because they are occasionally found in construction with a Preposition, as

* Or literally,

The censurers were eager to censure mer

But when my heart from excess of love was ready to break;

My very censurers kastened to console me;

Then preserve O God the life of my beloved?

There is something pretty if not elegant in the original of this verse, but its spirit I fear is too subtle for transfusion into our idiom. In a literal translation the repetition of the word censurers appears harsh and unpleasing, and the strange unconnected wish at the close not very suitable to the complaint expressed in the three first lines, though dilated into a quatrain. As a curious example whoever of the four Verbs under discussion it deserves to be remembered.

حكا يَة

A certain religious man was so deeply affected with the love of a King's daughter, that he was brought to the very point of death. His disciple said to him one day, what has the Almighty done with the king of your understanding and patience, for your body seems almost reduced to a mere shadow? Ah my child said the devotee, I subdued my feelings till my very heart was nearly breaking, and practiced patience to the utmost stretch of my power, but when the army of love invaded me, the king of my understanding was put to flight, and I could hold out no longer: he then wept and repeated the following lines:

The jeerer was keen with his joke,
And eager to mock my despair;
But he saw my heart almost was broke,
And he sought but to soften my care.

3. The third is which governs the Noun in the Nominative, and the Predicate in the Objective Case, which Predicate is invariably the Aorist Tense of a Verb without as:

يَ كُرِبَ زِيْثُ يَكُرِجُ Zued was near coming out.

4. The fourth is which governs the Noun in the Nominative, and the Predicate in the Objective Case, which Predicate is a Verb in the Aorist Tense with or without

EXAMPLE

اَوْشَكَ زَيْدٌ اَنْ يَجِيْعَ Zued expedited his coming.

Some Grammarians make out seven Verbs of Propinquity, adding to the four abovementioned the following three, namely اَخَدُ طَعْقَ جَعَلُ which are altogether Synonymous with كَرَبُ in sense and application.

Annotation.

The Commentator on the Alfeea makes حَرَى Syuonymous with إِنْ أَنْ يَقُومُ in the sense of hope or expectation, but its predicate must always be an Aorist with the Particle وَمَ يَقُومُ مَ يَقُومُ عَلَيْ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ وَمَ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ اللَّالِي اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّا

The above rules are precisely applicable to اَخْلُولَةَتُ السَّهَاءُ لَنَ تَهُطُو مَعْ عَلَى اللَّهُ اللَّ

اَوْلَىٰ زَيْدُ أَنْ يَزِيدٌ عَلَى ثَلَاثَ as, ثَالَةُ as, ثَالَةُ as, أَوْلَىٰ زَيْدُ أَنْ يَزِيدٌ عَلَى ثَلَاثَ As supposed by Ruzee to be Synonymous with آوُلَىٰ زَيْدُ أَنْ يَزِيدٌ عَلَى ثَلَاثَ as, ثَالَةُ as, ثَالَةُ عَلَى ثَلَاثَ Pued was on the point of encreasing his gift of three (Rupees!) Its predicate must be accompanied with أَالَ

اَحُالُهُ Is used in the sense of اَحَالُهُ as,

المُعَمَّدُ اللهِ He was on the point of rising, or he was very near rising.

The Aorist of this Verb does not require to be accompanied with . The Verbs of this Class are included in the following little story.

In which example is put in the Nominative Case, as the Noun of is and is substituted for, or put in the place of the Objective as its Predicate; The sense of the Sentence is therefore.

The same rules that are applicable to & are equally applicable to its Deriva-

EXAMPLE:

Grammarians differ considerably among themselves, with regard to the sense of the when preceded by a Negative Particle, some maintaining and with propriety, that it bestows on the Verb a Negative signification, and others asserting that it has no such force, the sense of the Verb remaining unaffected as before; while others believe that the Particle is redundant before  $\Im \mathring{k}$  in the Past Tense, but preserves its signification in the Future.

Amotation.

ارشک فلای Was originally Synonymous with اسکری and is still to used in this sense, as ارشک فلای 'such a person hastened his march;' agreeably to the authority of the Commentator on the Alfeen it is used like عسی either as a Perfect or Imperfect Verb. It is conjugated like عسی but the Grammarian عمی says, it never occurs in the Past Tense as given in the Text, but in the Aorist, which however is rejected in the Alfeen on the authority of Khulleel.

Under the general head of Verbs of Profinquity, (besides those enumerated in the Commentary above,) may be mentioued the following, namely,

In which case there is no necessity for the introduction of a Predicate, in opposition to its first application where the sense would otherwise remain imperfect.

In its first combination it is therefore termed IMPERFECT, and in its second PERFECT.

The second is of which governs the Noun or Agent in the Nominative, and the Predicate in the Accusative or Objective Case, which Predicate is generally a Verb in the Aorist Tense without it sometimes admits of if likewise, inconsequence of its resemblance to

EXAMPLE.

المَا يَرْبُ يَا اللهِ Zucd hastened his coming, or advanced it to the last point.

Annotation.

0 F 🛁 🚖 .

In its original signification is Synonymous with خرنج though it cannot be used alone as such, as كَيْدَا يَكَادُ كَوْتَ or WAO as الْحَوْدَ or WAO as الْحَرْيَدُ but Grammarians in general seem inclined to think it the former. The following example from the Hureeree will illustrate its general force.

He exhaled a storm of passion fiery as the summer blast, And was almost bursting with very rage!

ورب With its medial radical marked Futha, and sometimes Kusruh, Is also Synonymous with s in the following examples:

The fire was near being extinguished. کَرَبَتِ الشَّهُسُ The sun was nearly set.

Second. The Verb in its second application gives or the sign of the Nominative Case, to a Verb in the Aorist Tense in construction with is substituted for, or put in the place of the Nominative, as the Noun of and is then Synonymous with is,

EXAMPLE.

The coming out of Zued was near, or عَسَىٰ أَنْ يَحْرِجَ زَيْدُ He was on the point of coming out.

Annotation.

Maracci however renders it here fortusse which is copied by Sale. "War is enjoined you against the infidels, but this is hateful unto you: yet perchance you hate a thing which is better for you, and perchance you love a thing which is worse for you, but God knoweth and you know not." Sale.

The Predicate of we is restricted in the Text to a Verb in the Aorist Tense with the Particle but although this appears to be the general practice of the Language, there are some instances noticed by Grammarians in which the Predicate is a Noun, as with the Language, there are some instances noticed by Grammarians in which the Predicate is a Noun, as with the Language, there are some instances noticed by Grammarians in which the Predicate is a Noun, as with Language, there are some instances noticed by Grammarians in which the Predicate is a Noun, as with Language, there are some instances noticed by Grammarians in which the Predicate is a Noun, as with Language, there are some instances noticed by Grammarians in which the Aorist of Language, there are some instances on the Language, there are some instances noticed by Grammarians account for it by supposing it to be then redundant.

sons is occasionally marked kusra, as, which is used in the Aorist, but I am aware of no example and shall not therefore insert the opinions of Grammarians on the subject.

In which example ن الله is put in the Nominative, as the Noun or Agent of and and is substituted for the Accusative or Objective Case, as its Predicate. The sense of the Sentence will therefore be.

Zued accelerated his egress.

The Predicate of agrees with its Noun or Agent in Gender and number.

EXAMPLE.

The two Zueds hastened to stand.

أَنْ يَعُوْمُوا النَّالِيْكُوْنَ اَنْ يَغُوْمُوا (All) the Zueds, &c. to stand,

Hinda hastened to &c.

The two Hindas hastened to &c.

أَنْ تَعُوْمُا اللهُ اللهِ الْهَالَةُ اللهِ الْهَالَةُ اللهُ ال

Aimotation.

By this classification as laid down in the Commentary upon the Alfera, the Verb appears is excluded from the Verbs of Propinquity, contrary to the doctrine in the Text; the grounds upon which this exclusion is founded are the following:

It is supposed by the Grammarian Adj. Zahid to be a Particle Synonymous with Jel. Ruzee thinks its proper signification is hope or expectation, to which Seebuwee adds pity and fear, as in the fear I shall die, or I fear am about to die.

And agreeably to the authority of the Siman it denotes certainty, as in the following example from the Quoran:

كُتِبَ عَلَيْكُمُ الْقِتَا لَ وَ هُو كُرْ لا لَكُمْ وَعَسَلَ أَنْ تَكَبُّوا الْمُ مَنْعَسَلَ أَنْ تَحْبُوا الْمَ مَنْ هُوا شَيَا وَ هُو خَيْرِلَكُمْ وَعَسَلَ أَنْ تَحْبُوا اللهِ عَلَمُ وَعَسَلَ أَنْ تَحْبُوا اللهِ عَلَمُ وَاللَّهُ عَلَمُ وَانْتَمِلاً تَعْلَمُونَ عَلَيْهُ وَاللَّهُ عِلْمُ وَانْتَمِلاً تَعْلَمُونَ عَ

Annotation.

To the Verbs of this Class generally termed from their signification, Verbs of Propinquity, Grammarians have added several others, which though nearly synonymous in point of sense, are yet sufficiently distinct in application to warrant their arrangement into the following classes or divisions.

1. Verbs of Propinquity properly so called, viz.

2. Verbs denoting hope or expectation, or implying confidence in some future event, viz.

3. Verbs denoting the commencement of an action, or Inceptives, viz.

STORY.

Aboos Shimuqmuq was a humorist, but falling poor his wife was compelled to pass a whole night without any thing to eat. He went out therefore with the hope of procuring for her a little sustenance, but not succeeding he continued traversing the streets till he arrived at the great Mosque, which he entered and concealing himself in one of its angles, continued standing there till the whole congregation had retired, with the exception of the public Crier, who when night came on, began to pray, saying.- O God at whose mighty will non-existence sprung into life, and by whose merciful kindness the poor and sorrowful are made happy.'—I am here my servant, 'cried Aboos Shimuqmuq,' ask of me what thou requirest!' the astonished Crier believing he had been honored with the holy conference formerly granted to Moses, replied;—'O Goo! thou certainly knowest that this thy servant hath always been obedient to thy will, and hath never ceased to confide to thee his wishes: he hath passed the day in such extreme lunger that his very bowels yearn again for food, bestow upon him then from thy infinite bounty one thousand Dirhums, which will supply his wants and provide sustenance for his family.'—O my servant! cried Aboos Shimuqmuq, petition for something else, for I swear by my mighty power and dignity that my wife hath passed the whole night fasting, and although I searched every where to find a little bit of supper for her, I have not succeeded in procuring a mouthful, nor have I in my possession sufficient to keep her soul and body together!—The poor Crier ashamed of the trick played upon him, left the Mosque to Aboos Shimuqmuq and went off.

the forms of existence being la number infinite, if the particular form be not expressed, we cannot know which is intended." He then goes on to remark, "that when (is) only serves to subjoin some such form, it has little more force than that of a mere assertion," and further on.—"As to Existence in general, it is either Mutable, (a like is in the Objects of Sensation; Immutable, as in the Objects of Sensation; Immutable, as in the Objects exist all in Time, and admit the several distinctions of Present, Past, and Future: But Immutable Objects know no such distinctions, but rather stand opposed to all things temporary.

And hence two different significations of the Substantive Verb (18), according as it denotes Mutable or Immutable being.

For example, if we say, this orange is ripe, (15) meaneth, that it existeth so now at this Present, in Opposition to Past Time, when it was green, and to Future Time when it will be rotten.

But if we say, the Diameter of the square is commensurable with its side, we do not intend by (1s) that it is commensurable now, having been formerly commensurable or being to become so hereafter; on the contrary we intend that perfection of existence, to which time and its distinctions are uttered unknown. It is under the same meaning we employ this Verb, when we say, TRUTH 1s, or God is. The opposition is not of time present to other times, but of necessary existence to all temporary existence whatever."

[Hermes p. 92.]

As my object in producing these extracts is merely to explain and illustrate the doctrine of the Arabian Grammarians on the subject of Imperfect or Defective Verbs, I avoid as usual all discussion on the question of its merits or demerits.

incongruities, or according to Ammonius, less than, σύμβαματα, as it pleases me to come to thee; whether the Nouns only or the words require it. See Stanley's History of Philosophy. Folio Ed. 1701, in the life of Zeno, p. 310.

In answer to certain of the Arabian Grammarians who contend that Imperfect Verbs, are merely used to denote time without reference to the sense of their Infinitives, the Grammarian Ruzee in his-celebrated Commentary upon the Kafeca makes the following reply, which I offer as a short specimen of his style and manner.

The above three Verbs are sometimes used in the sense of , as, as, اَ صَبَ الْفَعَيْرُ غَنِيًا The poor man became rich.

Zued became a writer.

The obscure became bright.

They are sometimes used in the sense of Perfect Verbs, as,

السَّرَ رَبُنُ بِهُ عَنَى كَالُومِ الْصَبَّاحِ كَالْ فَى الْصَبَّاحِ لَى الْسَاءِ لَى الْسَاء

Annotation.

If that which is predicated of a name, make an Axiom, it is a Categorem, or σύμβαμα, a Congruity, as walketh, for example, Socrates walketh.

But if it be predicated of the Cise (whereby Transitions are made from one person to another, wherein it is necessary that some Oblique Case be likewise pronounced with the right,) they are called Παρασυμβαμαία, as an addition to the σύμβαμα (or as Priscian renders it, less than Congruities) as Givero saved his country.

Again, if that which is predicated of some Noun, require a Case of some other Noun to be added to make up the Axiom, so as the construction be made of two Oblique Cases, they are ασυμθαματα,

3. The third, fourth and fifth, are whole of which are used to unite or conjoin the sense of the Sentence with their respective times, namely, morning, evening, and noon, as from this defect they called holov houneaux, or harnyognum some thing less than a Co-incider, or less than a Predicable.

اصْبَحْ زَبِلٌ غَنْبِيَّا مَعْنَاءُ الصَّبَ الصَلَّ عَلَى السَالِ السَّبَ السَالِ السَالِ السَالِ السَالَ ال

Lastly, when a Verb required two Nouns in Oblique Cases, to render the sentiment complete, as when we say Σωμράτει Αλμιδιάδες μέλει, Tædet me vitæ, or the like, such Verb they called ή του, or ξλατίου ή παρασύμετμα, or ή παραματηγορημα, something less than an Imperfect Co-incider, or an Imperfect Predicable."

Here by the way it may be worth remarking, that almost the whole of the above extract seems copied from Stanley's History of Philosophy, which Harris appears to me to have made frequent use of in his Hermes and Philosophical Arrangements without any sort of acknowledgment. The following may serve as a specimen:—"Whatsoever is Predicated of another is Predicated of the name of the Case, and both these are either Perfect, as that which is predicated, and together with the subject sufficient to make an Axiom. Or they are Defective, and require some addition to make thereof a Perfect Predicate."

2d. As a Perfect Verb, forming with its Nominative or Agent alone a complete or perfect Sentence, and consequently does not require to be connected with any other Predicate. In this sense it denotes existence (absolutely), as

2. The second is which is used to denote a change in the Subject of the Proposition either, from one nature or substance into another, as, or else from its readiness  $\sigma v \mu \mathcal{E} d v \varepsilon v$ , to co-incide with its Noun in completing the Sentence, they called it  $\Sigma v \mu \mathcal{E} d \mu \alpha \alpha$  a Co-incider.

When a Verb was able with a Noun to from a Perfect Assertive Sentence, yet could not associate with such Noun, but under some Oblique Case, a Σωνςάτει μεταμέλει, Socratem pænitet: such a Verb from its near approach to just Co-incidence and Predication, they called Παρασύμθαμα or Παρακατηγόρημα.

When a Verb, though regularly Co-inciding with a Noun in its Nominative, still required to complete the sentiment some other Noun under an Oblique Case, as Πλάτων Φιλεῖ Δίωννα, Plato loveth Dio (where without Dio or some other, the Verb loveth would rest indefinite:) such a Verb,

CLASS TENTH.

The tenth Class contains thirteen Verbs termed Appendix or Imperfect Verbs, and are so called because they cannot with an Agent alone, form a complete or perfect Sentence. They precede in construction a Nominal Sentence, or a Sentence consisting of a Subject and Predicate, to the first of which they give and to the second in the first Term is called the first of the Substantive Noun, the second the first the Attribute or Predicate.

1. Of these the first is  $\odot$   $\checkmark$  which is used in two senses. 1st Imperfect. 2d Perfect.

As an Imperfect Verb it is used in two ways. First, as affirming the existence of its Attribute in its Substantive Noun or Subject, in time past, either in a sense capable of cessation, (وَهُ الْمُعُلِّمُ الْمُ الْمُعُلِّمُ الْمُعُلِّمُ ) as الْمُعُلِّمُ كُلُّمُ كُلُّمُ كُلُّمُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ عَلْهُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ اللّهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ اللّهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ اللّهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ عَالِمُ عَلَيْهُ عَ

Annotation.

The Arabian Grammarians consider Verbs as either Perfect or Imperfect, and as their account of them seems to agree in almost every respect with that of the Stoics as given by Harris in his Hermes, I shall present the extract to the reader by way of illustration.

"The Stoics in their logical view of Verbs, as making part in Propositions, consider them under the four following sorts:

When a Verb Co-inciding with the Nominative of some Noun, made without further help a Perfect Assertive Sentence, as Σωμρατης περιπατεί Socrates walketh; then as the Verb in such Caso implied the power of a Perfect Predicate, they called it for that reason Κατηγόρημα a Predicable;

لاَفْرَقَ بَيْنَهُ وَبَيْنَ المُّرَةِ اللَّهِ الصُّوْرَةِ الْإِنْسَانِيَّةِ لِاَنَّهُ لَاتَسْتَطِيْعُ اَنَ يَتَكَلَّمُ اللَّبِهَا - لاَفْرَقَ بَيْنَهُ وَ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ الْفَضَبَيَا شَهُمْ فَا إِنَّا هَذَا اَيْضًا تَيْنِ الْكَلِّمَ تَيْنِ الْكَلِّمَ تَيْنِ الْكَلِّمَ تَيْنِ الْكَلِّمَ تَيْنِ الْكَلِّمَ تَيْنِ اللَّهِ الْفَضَبَيَا شَهُمْ فَا إِنَّا هَذَا الْيَضَا تَيْنِ الْكَلِمَ تَيْنِ السَّهُ فَوْ اللَّهِ السَّهُ فَوْ خَةِ *

STORY.

An old man* complained to a Doctor of bad digestion. O let bad digestion alone said the Doctor, for it is one of the concomitants of old age. He then stated his weakness of sight. Don't meddle with weakness of sight replied the Doctor, for that also is one of the concomitants of old age. He complained to him of a difficulty of hearing. Alas how distant is hearing said the Doctor from old men! difficulty of hearing is a steady concomitant of old age. He complained to him of want of sleep. How widely separated said the Doctor, are sleep and old men, for want of sleep is certainly a concomitant of old age. He complained to him of a decrease of hodily vigour. † This is an evil replied the Doctor that soon hastens on old men, for want of vigour is a necessary concomitant of old age. The old man (unable to keep his patience any longer) called out to his companions-seize upon the booby, lay hold of the blockhead, drag along the ignorant idiot, that dolt of a Doctor, who understands nothing, and who has nothing to distinguish him from a Parrot, but the human figure, with his 'concomitants of old age,' for sooth! the only words he seems capable of uttering. The Doctor smiled, and said, come on my old boy, get into a passion, for this also is a concomitant of old age.

And howmany have I caten beyond that number and yet am not mad? and now I swear by God I will put you to death with this sword. It always governs the مَوْمَ in the Aorist or Oplique Case, in other words its its أَنَّ مُوْمَ is مَوْمَ أَوْمَ اللهُ الل

COMMENTARY

CLASS EIGHTH.

The eighth Class contains four words which give to an Indefinite Noun ( ) or govern it in the Accusative or Objective case, as the river or Noun of Specification.

The same government is applicable to the Numbers, عَشُرُونَ Twenty; وَمَعُونَ Twenty; آرَبَعُونَ Seventy. Sixty; سَبُعُونَ Seventy. Sixty; سَبُعُونَ اللهُ Sixty; سُبُعُونَ اللهُ Sixt

If the be a MASCULINE Noun, the grammatical arrangement of the units and in construction with will be as follows, with both members of the compound number in the MASCULINE Gender:

EXAMPLES.

اَكُنُ عَشَرَرُجُلاً Eleven men. آثنا عَشَرَرُجُلاً Twelve men.

Annotation.

The words contained in the eighth Class are nouns of number either determinate or indeterminate, which generally give and sometimes to an indefinite noun, or govern it in the Objective, and Aorist or Oblique Cases; and as Numbers in their applicate sense refer to particulars, in opposition to those in the abstract, the word expressive of that particularity is blways termed or contained the noun of specification or Particularity; or the Specification, and significantly of the noun Numbered. It must however be remembered that the

STORY.

A certain city lounger was standing one day in the street, and happened to see a woman of elegant appearance pass by with a child in her arms. He said to the people about him, 'if any one will bring me that child in order that I may kiss his feet, I will give him ten Dirhums,' but no body answered him. He addressed them again, and said, 'I will give fifteen Dirhums to any one that will bring me the child,' but they continued silent as before. I had better said he to himself leave these blockheads alone, and watch the motions of the woman. and wherever she goes, go there also, and at whatever house she enters, stop there (and wait her coming out,) upon which he began to follow her. The woman (turned round) and said, 'what is your object Sir, in pursuing me thus? I wish replied he for permission to kiss the feet of that child, and if you allow me, I will do whatever you command. Why do you wish this said the woman? because I love vou replied he, and you love the child, and the beloved of the beloved, is also beloved. The woman laughed at his answer, and said if you are determined on this, you had better wait for his father, who is about to proceed to the bath,* and when he takes off his shoes you can go and kiss his feet, for my love to him is greater than to this child. The fellow was abashed at her reply and retreated.

The various governing words in the seventh Class are comprised in the following Story.

name, on the contrary believing she wished for that which no plant or herb can cure, ‡ said to his Apprentice, give the lady my boy, what she wishes of you. The woman was enraged at the insinuation, and said, I never thought of the strange idea, which has entered your mind; I merely wished for a little of the medicine called Love's-Apple. The Apothecary felt embarrassed, and said, O my good daughter do not annoy yourself, but say if you please, Love-Apple. He then gave an order to his boy to weigh her out three Drams of it, and not to stint her in the weight.

CLASS SEVENTH.

The seventh class contains nine words, which give or the QUIESCENT mark to the AORIST. They possess a conditional or hypothetical signification like the literally, the desire or ardour of love. I am aware that the Love-Apple, as a genus of the Monogynia order, is not exactly applicable to the Arabian plant, but it serves to convey some idea of the Pun, and this is all I intended.

† The original means simply, "that which the heart pants after from the bitterness, or violence of love." We may suppose that the Arabian Apothecary from the Lady's mistake imagined her in search of the Agnus Castus, or some other love antidote, but having no idea that so much virtue could be found in an herb:—He mini quod nullis amor est medicabilis herbis! Unwittingly recommended her to his Apprentice.

§ Or two miskals which are supposed equal to three Drams.

Annotation.

The word has various other uses besides those mentioned in the Commentary; the following are of common occurrence and may be worth inserting:

It is used, 1st Interrogatively, as نَى بَعْثَنَا مِن مُوقَدَ نَا who has aroused us from our place of rest (i. e. the Grave)?

Say (O Mohummud) to my faithful servants; let them observe the stated hours of prayer.

The Prohibitive Particle  $\chi$  is seldom found with the 1st Person, but is equally applicable to the 2d and 3d. Its origin and character are disputed. Some Grammarians derive it from the  $\chi$  Lam of command, by adding to it Alif— says it is not a prohibitive but a Negative Particle, and that the government ascribed to it, is to be attributed to the Imperative Lam understood: but both these opinions are overruled by the author of the Mooghnez who confirms the doctrine recorded in the Commentary.

OF THE PARTICLE

There is nothing to be remarked of except that it is used as a Negative as well as a conditional Particle, and that it is frequently found as a mere expletive. Schultens says it is used rhetorically as an animated Aposiopesis in swearing, a use that has not been discovered by any of the Arabian Grammarians, and which I shall not therefore transcribe. The Particles in Class the Sixth are illustrated in the following Story.

The المُرَدُّ or letter و الم of command may be always marked with the vowel المُرَدُّ but the Grammarian سليم makes it نَدُتُك. When it follows either the Conjunction or is it is generally rendered Quiescent, and also occasionally after والم

It is generally omitted in the 2d Person of the Imperative Active, and also in the 1st Person, and is sometimes understood in Poetry, though its government remains, as

And let your generosity or munificence reserve for me a portion.' The Grammarian however does not subscribe to this rule even in Poetry, unless it is found preceded in the Sentence by the preposition of the sentence by the preposition of the sentence in Poetry.

Annotation,

OF THE PARTICLE Q.

The distinction observed by the Arabian Grammarians in point of sense between is and it seems to be this, that is as a Negative relates to a portion of time past, whereas it in a more comprehensive and absolute sense, embraces the whole period; we can say therefore is a solution of time past, whereas it in a more comprehensive and absolute sense, embraces the whole period; we can say therefore is a solution of time past, whereas it in a more comprehensive and absolute sense, embraces the whole period; we can say therefore tence, and say if which would in fact amount to this.—"It never was and then was." This is the general opinion of Grammarians, but there are some who consider these Particles as synonymous in every respect.

The author of the قطر الذكر makes it a compound of مرا and to which is confirmed by قطر الذكر and to which is confirmed by Ruzee, who adds that to is added to it in the same manner as in ار قرا هده قد قد من قد الله قد الل

أَوْ differs also from in this, that the verb of the latter may be some times omitted in a Sentence, as that is المُدَّةُ عَلَيْدُ الْمِلْدُ قَالَ الْمِلْدُ قَالِمُ اللَّهُ الْمُلْدُ قُلْمُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ عَلَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ عَلَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللّهُ اللَّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ

The word U besides its use as a governing Particle, is employed to denote time, and seems in this case to resemble when. As such, it is prefixed to a verb in the past time, in a Proposition consisting of noon and evening prayers.—Then, said he, I will sing you something that will please you. One of my friends called upon me in the evening, and informed me that the King had ordered the Songster to be put to death.—On what account I asked? Because replied he, the King's Daughter heard him singing to-day and was so enchanted with his voice, that she was nearly throwing herself down from the top of the palace in ecstasy;—the King ran and drew her in from the window, and having locked the door, ordered the Musician to be put to death. On hearing this said the learned man, I made my escape, as soon as the people left me, fearing I might experience the same fate myself, I being in fact the cause of his singing.

CLASS SIXTH.

The sixth class contains five particles which being prefixed to the agrist, render the final letter or quiescent, viz.

1. The Particle of converts the Aorist into a negative preterite.

EXAMPLE.

آمُ يَضُرِبُ In the sense of مَاضَرَ بَ He did not strike.

Annotation.

The Particle is synonymous with (a. Its effect upon the Aorist is to change and into particle is into performed and seems in this respect to correspond with the Apocope of European Grammarians. In conversation however this rule is not always observed by the Arabs, who use it like to and x without causing any difference of inflexion in the verb; the same license is sometimes indulged in Poetry, and what is still more extraordinary the Grammarian is sometimes asys, it occasionally renders the Aorist is and in this way he reads the first sentence of the 94th Chapter of the Qooran:

STORY.

I called one day, said a learned man, upon a friend of mine, who was an excellent Singer, and said to him, I am come to you, that you may enliven me with a song, for I have been annoyed this morning, and know no remedy so effectual in dispelling care. I beg therefore that you will oblige me with a couple of good verses. He answered, with great pleasure, and sung the following.

Thy flight the knots of patience hath unwound, *
Yet in my soul thy form is firmly bound:
What were thy wrong, love's bitter to allay,
With sweets from me withheld; on others cast away.

I was delighted, says the narrator, with his harmony, and found myself relieved from the affliction that weighed upon my heart, and asked him, do you think any other person in this city can be found a match for you in singing. No said he, I do not think there is, nor will you ever find in it any such. I then took my leave of him, saying;—I will call upon you tomorrow, please God, between the

The verb in the original is used in four different senses. In the first it means to open. In the second to enter. In the third to sweeten, and in the fourth to be lawful.

The Particles in the Fifth Class are included in the following Story.

OF THE PARTICLE

Some Grammarians maintain that 3 is a noun, but the general opinion is that it is a Particle.

As a Particle some derive it from 3 and 4 and others again allow it no Etymology, but consider it a simple uncompounded Particle.

The Grammarian (شَاوِيْهُ, says it is always used in the sense of مَاوِيْهُ, and إِنَّ مَا يَعْمُ explained in the Text; but مَا مُعْمُ merely admits its general application in this sense, and gives the following example, to prove that it is sometimes met with as the عَمُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ عَلَيْهُ اللهُ اللهُ

The government of is guided by certain conditions.

It must immediately precede the Aorist, with the exception of a or oath, or the negative Particle y either of which is allowed to intervene, without destroying its government, as, الذَن يُعالِمُ 'Then by God I will honor you,'—or, الذَن يُعالِمُ الله المراكبة والمعالمة والمع

This Particle, agreeably to the authority of the Grammarian KHULEEL is compounded of 2 and 1. The Humza is rejected, for the sake of euphony, leaving 1, the Alif of which is also thrown out, because two quiescent letters occurring together cannot be pronounced, and thus we have 1.

3. The Particle is used in the sense of Alis and and or cause and motive, indicating that that which precedes it, is the cause of that which follows it.

EXAMPLE.

آ سُلُمْتُ كَنَى اَنْ خُلُ الْجَنَّةُ [ I embraced the Moosulman faith, that I might enter into Heaven.

Annotation.

OF THE PARTICLE ST.

The author of the Mooghnee says, that is a noun abbreviated from in the following verse:*

Now can you incline to peace, Your slaughtered friends being yet unrevenged, And the slame of war still raging?

It occurs as a PARTICLE in the sense of كَمْ الْتَعْلَيْلُ and يَا الْمُوْمُولِيُّ and in this sense precedes the مَا الْمُوْصُولَة Example, رَمُ الْمُؤْمُولُة that is, الْمُوصُولَة Why did you strike.

It precedes also the يَرْجِي الْغَمَّيِ كُمْهَا يُضْرُو يَنْغِع , Example, مَا الْمُصْدُ رِيَّة 'A man may expect to receive the good or evil he does.'

"That you be not sorrowful." ولاَنْ لَا تَا سُوا for لَكُيلا تَا سُوا as أَنِ الْمُصَدِّرِيَّة That you be not sorrowful.

As a proof of this it may be observed that the is retained in its retained in which would have been rejected had been here a governing Particle:

2. The Particle restricts the verb to FUTURE time, in a confirmed negative sense.

EXAMPLE.

Annotation.

As a pleonastic particle it occurs as follows:

- 1. After عَمَّةُ مَا النَّوقَمِيّةُ or the temporal lumma, عَارُزُكُ When Zued came?
- 2. Between the Particle أَوْ and a مَنْ الْقَسَمِ بِاللَّهُ i. e. a verb of swearing: as الْوَانَى اَقْسَمُ بِاللَّهُ If I swear by God.'
- 3. Between the Preposition and its governed word; as just 'Zued is like a Lion;'
  - 4. After اذًا أَنْ خَرْجُتْ as, اندَا الله When you went out.

OF THE PARTICLE of

OF THE PARTICLE

The Particle in with the Humza Muftooh, and Noon Quiescent, as explained in the Text, occurs both as a Noun, and a Particle.

As a Particle it is used in four ways.

stance of its being prefixed either to the AORIST, or FAST Tense, and sometimes even to the IMPERATIVE, as مَا الْمُعَامِلُونَ اللَّهُ الْعُلِمُ اللَّهُ ال

Its pronoun is generally rejected in composition, but sometimes expressed, as وَالْمُوانِدُ وَالْمُوانِدُ اللَّهُ عَلَى اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَى اللَّهُ اللّ

It is occasionally met with as an Explanatory Particle, synonymous with si as in the following Example from the Qooran: (That is, make the Ark.'

عِلَّةً لَمْ يَعْمِ الْحَبَارُفَهَا أَدُّولُ فَعَالَ الشَّمْعُ قُلُ النَّهُ مُشْتَعِلُ بِاكْلِ الْعَلَفِ قَالَ الشَّمْعُ قُلُ النَّهُ مَا النَّذِي جَاءَ المَّسْمِ وَالْجَيْشَ وَ قَيْلَ الْمِي مَا النَّذِي جَاءَ المَّسْمِ وَالْجَيْشَ وَ قَيْلَ الْمِي مَا النَّذِي جَاءَ السَّمْعُ قُلُ النَّهُمْ فَاللَّا الشَّمْعُ قُلُ النَّهُمْ فَاللَّا الشَّمْعُ قُلُ النَّهُمْ فَا أَنْ السَّمْعُ قُلُ النَّهُمْ فَا السَّمْعُ وَلَا اللَّهُ اللَهُ اللَّهُ الللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللل

A man of learning went one day to the house of a Grammarian, who happened at the time to have a boy before him reading Syntax. The learned man stopped at at the door to hear the boy read, and heard him say to his master. 'O Sir, when I say," " all the people went out but Zucd." and am asked-why did not Zued go out also? What answer should I give? Say, replied the master, that he was busy beating AMR. Very well, said the boy: but when I say, -" the tribe rose up all but the Ass," and am asked-why did not the Ass rise up too? What should I answer? Answer, said the pedant, that he was busy eating grass. Good, said the boy-and when I say-' the General came along with the army,' and am askedwhat brought the General along with the army? What should I say? Say, said the schoolmaster, they are come by order of this gentleman (at the door,) to flog me.-On hearing which the boy uttered a shriek—exclaiming—protect me, O followers of Monumen! O father! O brother! O people! hasten, hasten, to my assistance, for this man at the door, is certainly mad, and has given orders to have me beaten, and out he ran. The man laughed heartily at both of them, and went about his business.

Particles, and is occasionally understood in a sentence, as أي عن المرض عن هذا O Joseph let this alone, or refrain from this! It is alone applied to the word المنتابة and to المنتابة and to المنتابة ا

The Particle ( is supposed to be originally (i) the Human being changed into ( a.

STORY.

A certain Chieftain of the tribe of Bunec Ajil, had two sons, one of whom was rich, the other poor. To the rich one he was kind and partial, to the other indifferent. He was asked,-why do you slight and neglect your son, a son on whom the Almighty has placed a crown of excellence and accomplishments?— Wealth you know is transitory, it comes to-day, and leaves us to-morrow. The old man replied. He can be of no service to me—if he possess accomplishments they will be of service to him: as for my other son, I am partial to him from necessity, and he has no occasion for any thing of mine, as the poet has justly said.

DISTICH:

I have observed that men incline towards those who are rich, But decline all connexion with those who have nothing.

CLASS FOURTH.

The fourth class, contains seven particles, which govern the noun in the OBJECTIVE case, viz.

L. The Particle of synonymous with

EXAMPLE.

The water was equal with the wood.

Annotation.

The Particle , , as synonymous with za is like other Particles a subject of controversy with Grammarians, some contending for its government, and others denying it, and both parties producing erguments and quotations to defend their respective opinions. The author of the 35 says the government usually assigned to j', is properly owing to some preceding verb, either expressed or understood in the sentence, as in the example سرت وزيداً 'I travelled with Zned.'

It always in the above sense, denotes society or companionship, and is found to occur three different ways in a sentence.

1. It is preceded by a verb, as سرت وزيدا I travelled with Zued? Or by a word resembling a , verb in sense, as, مَالَكُ وَرَبِداً i. e. مَالَكُ وَرَبِداً What are you doing with Zued?

ومِنْ ظلامِ حَالِكِ وَالْكُوى وَ اللَّهِ يَهِ وَ النَّوْرِوَ لَمْكَا لِهِ اللَّهِ عَالِكِ وَالنَّوْرِوَ لَمْكَا لِهِ اللَّهِ مَنْ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ مَنْ اللَّهُ مَا اللَّهُ مُنْ أَلَّهُ مَنْ اللَّهُ مُنْ اللَّهُ مُنْ اللَّهُ مِنْ اللَّهُ مِنْ اللَّهُ مَنْ اللَّهُ مَنْ اللَّهُ مَنْ اللَّهُ مِنْ اللَّهُ مُنْ اللَّهُ مِنْ اللَّالَّ اللَّهُ مِنْ اللَّالَّ مُنْ اللَّهُ مِنْ اللَّهُ مِنْ

G and grif explained and illustrated at full length would far exceed the bounds of this Commentary, indeed it is to be feared I have already explained more than is necessary, I shall therefore close this annotation, with one- or two miscellaneous remarks.

The intensive or corroborative negative which in Greek is effected by two or more negatives is provided for in Arabic, by a peculiar form of conjugation i. e. by the adjection of the probibitive Y and Non Sukeela subjoined, as you let him certainly not strike." But this it not be remembered is applicable only to prohibitive forms of expression. It is curious to observe the concourse of negatives in the following passage from Demos hences, Cudenote outly of prohibitive forms of expression. It is curious to observe the concourse of negatives in the following passage from Demos hences, Cudenote outly of prohibitive for never) be done, which however is not more remarkable than the following attendated to a cockney who had lost his hat—if Did nobody see nothing, of never a hat no where?

The particle in almost all its various, and event opposite relations, bears a striking resemblance to the Greek Mg, as No and J do to of: to illustrate the latter remark, I shall offer the flowing little extract from Plutauch as quoted by the Messicurs De Port Royal, not indeed so much for the purpose of clucidating a point of comparatively no importance, as to introduce to the rader two very successful and sprited versions of the original into Arabic, by Shuekh United, a learned native of Yemen, at present attached to the College of the content of the college of the co

One peculiarity attending it is, that in the sentence in which it is employed, either the subject, or predicate must be understood; the common practice of the language seems to authorise the rejection of the subject, as وَكُنْتُ مِنْاً مِنْ مُنَا مِنْ اللهُ اللهُ وَهُمْ اللهُ اللهُ اللهُ اللهُ اللهُ وَهُمْ اللهُ الل

* LOCKE says it was long seriously disputed whether a bat was a bird or not.

The particle as a Universal Negative has the same government as if provided, first that the following noun, or noun affected by the negation, is connected with another word in the acrist case, i. e. in regimine, or has any connexion of a similar nature to a noun in regimine.

EXAMPLE.

In regimine. لاَ صَاحِبُ جُودٍ مُوجُود No man of liberality is now existing,

Resembling a noun a noun la se se la se l is the common responsive negative and is directly opposed to as in the following elegant complete.

I saw a fawn upon a hillock, whose beauty eclipsed the full moon; I said, what is thy name? she answered Deer. What, my Dear? said I, but she replied, No, No!

It is impossible to preserve in a translation the delisate play on the words in the first means literally a pearl, the second a repetition of mine, or for me, and the last a reduplication of the negative no. This species of paronymous composition is very common in the writings of the Persians and Arabs, and seems to have been practiced occasionally by the ancients: Vossius in his rhetoric has given numerons examples of the paronomasia from the Greek and Latin poets, others will be found in Aulus Gellius, Plantus and Ennius &c. which the reader it inclined may consult with pleasure. In the mean time I shall content myself with offering a quibble of rather a different description, the effect depending entirely on the ambiguity of homonymous words.

. Any word connected with another so as to render the sense complete is termed, مضارع للهضاف or شيعه الهضاقب

As grammarians however have observed a nice distinction between y in the character of in the character of its and y when synonymous with the verb I shall endeavour to state in as few words as possible, the grounds upon which they suppose this distinction is founded.

The term wish signifies literally negation of the genus, and as applicable to the particle y in such a phrase as yellow, conveys a total denial of every individual comprised in the general term i. c. 'no man is in the house;' and is therefore properly distinguished from y when resembling the imperfect verb it's office being simply to denote individual, or particular negation, of one or several from a general Class. Now as the negation in the above example is complete and universal, it is obvious that the proposition expressive of this negation, cannot be followed by a conjunction in or let to restrict or qualify the general term; for example after the words yellow men or more are in the house," we cannot add if yellow is the case is different with the same particle when Synonymous with with as has already been observed, is used to denote not universal but particular negation, and therefore we may say with propriety if the case in it."

It must be observed in the above example, that the noun of 3 in the character of the conditions already specified) the character of which it is assumed over its final letter the indeclinable mark futhu, whereas in its verbal capacity, it governs (under the conditions already specified) the subject in the nominative, and the predicate in the objective case; this the Arabian Grammarians account for in the first instance, by supposing an Ellipsis of the preposition or the comprehensive Min, in such a sentence as the following, termed ومن المعالم على المع

4. The particle X1 must not precede the PREDICATE, otherwise the government is destroyed.

EXAMPLE.

אים בי לי "Moonnwago is not but a Prophet."

The word La as a relative, indicative, prohibitive, and interregative particle, has a great variety of senses, attended with numerous grammatical distinctions, which cannot well be detailed here.

OF THE PARTICLE 1.

The resemblance subsisting between Y and the defective verb [m], is considered by Ibnool Hajib, in his Commentary on the Kareba, as inferior to that of L as it is not formed like it peculiarly to denote present negation; is seldom found with a definite noun; and cannot be used in a sentence the predicate of which is preceded by [], as an expletive: for these reasons it possesses a much more limited government than L, and some grammarians go so far as to deny it any government but in poetry. As an Agent however it is guided in its application, by the same conditions already recorded of [, with the exception of that relating to ] as a redundant particle preceding the predicate, in which form of construction it can never be employed.

3. The word or sentence immediately connected with the predicate, must not precede the noun of (, in the order of construction.

EXAMPLE.

"I do not act treacherously towards every one who has acted faithfully towards me."

If however the Jozo be a Zurf, or a noun in regimine, the government will be preserved.

EXAMPLES.

Zued is not standing near you.

Then the King ordered him a dress of honor, and gave him a suitable reward.

CLASS THIRD.

The third class, contains two particles, which resemble the imperfect verb, possessing like it a negative signification. They precede both TERMS

OF THE GOVERNMENT OF 6.

Of Hujaz, Nujd and Tehama however, whose authority as inhabitants of Arabia proper, may be reckoned decisive, consider it in almost every respect as Synonymous with the imperfect verb . First as it denote like present negation; and secondly as it may precede indifferently a definite, or indefinite noun, and admit the predicate in the sentence in which it is employed to be accompanied by the particle to by way of pleonasm. From this similarity of sense originated its similarity of regimen, governing like in the subject in the mominative, and the predicate of a proposition in the objective case: with these functions it is employed in the Qooran, and as the Qooran was immediately revealed to the inhabitants of Hujaz, it has acquired among grammarians in consequence the general appelation of the inhabitants of Hujaz, it has acquired among grammarians in consequence the general appelation of the inhabitants of Hujaz, it has acquired a simple negative particle, without any government, and as such was contradistinguished from the other by the term

As a grammatical agent, it precedes both a definite and indefinite noun, but most frequently the former, guided however by sundry conditions, the non-observance of which entirely destroys its government.

A certain King of Persia had grown so excessively fat, that though naturally of a graceful form, he resembled in size more an elephant than a man. His Physicians in consequence tried various expedients to reduce his enormous size, but their efforts had no other effect than to encrease it: in this state, a certain eminent Physician waited upon him, and said, I will undertake to prescribe for your Majesty, provided you allow me three days to consult your horoscope, and determine on some medicines suitable to your case; perhaps through the aid of the Almighty I may effect your recovery. At the expiration of the time required, the Physician waited upon the King, and said, I have consulted the aspect of the stars, and observe that you have but four days more to live: when I saw this your approaching destiny, I was much troubled, would to God I had not seen it. If you doubt my words, let me be confined close to you and treated agreeably to the event of my prediction. Then the King gave orders for his confinement, and began to prepare for death, discarded all his former amusements, excluded himself from the eyes of mankind, and the reply, (which infact included the whole of the Servile letters), said, I attend you regularly every day but never remember asking you any such question. The Shuckh replied, Alyuom tunsao, (i. c. to day you forget). No, said, the student, I do not forget. O blockhead! exclaimed the master, what, you are still in the dark! I heartily wish you were changed into an ass, for I have told you them twice. The scholar on hearing this was ashamed of his want of comprehension, and returned home, repeating, as he went along. Would that the Almighty, had granted me capacity.

The word Jul denotes contingency in some event, in a twofold manner.

First. Hope or expectation, ( تُو قُع ) of some contingent good.

Second. Fear or dread, (( ) of some contingent evil.

EXAMPLES.

- 1. العلى الحبيب مواصل Perhaps (I may gain) an interview with my beloved.
- 2. الْعَلَّ الرَّقِيبَ كَاصَلُ Perhaps my rival is (there) present.

It denotes occasionally causality or illation, (تعليل). Example from the Quorant

The word agreeably to the author of the Qimoos, assumes eleved various forms, viz.

The above six words are termed lived in the number of letters composing them, being either three or four. 2. Having their final letter like the preterite of verbs, marked Maftoah, i. c. with the vowel point Futher; and lastly from

Sir William Jones, has quoted these lines in his history of the Persian language, in a manner that destroys the versification, and embarrasses the sense, by the introduction of the conjunction , , in the second, and of la in the commencement of the fourth line; as the measure terminates on the penultima of the word 13 (24), the final syllable of which, (i. c. 15), by the figure Dialysis,* must in reading be made to commence the following line, thus:

ِ وَ إِلَيْتَ

He has also mistaken the sense of the two first lines, taking the relative to for a negative particle, and the word for a turtle-dove. The word for with the first letter Muksoor and the second Muftooh, signifies properly a meadow, the resort of facons, and is hence transferred to denote the abode of beautiful damsels, (and in the second line, with the He Muftoohu and Meem Muksooru, is a contraction of facons, (and not as Golius says, of the plural of fig.) the generic term for pigeon, of which fig., the turtle-dove is a species:

(a) is the plural of fig., like for fig. This inaccurate reading seems to have been copied from Gentius, who has himself overlooked the true sense of the lines, translating in the first line delicium, and in the second campestris, thus:

55. Illud quod de mentione delicii ad auras meas pervenit,.

Si turtur quoque campestris, audiret, mihi congemeret."

A word thus divided is said in the prosody of the Arabs to be litterally flidged.

OF THE WORD E.J.

It occurs in the following beautiful verse of SHCERH SUUDER in the 19th Story, and the Chapter of his Goolistan.

VERSE.

From those dear scenes that round my mistress size,
Sad straios of sorrow wake a lovers fighs;
Could they but learn, the Doves would feel my woe,
And soothing notes of sympathy bestow:
To him, my friends, who love's soft grief disdains.
And idly jests at unexperienced pains,
Be this your answer—Oh, may heaven impart
To thee, acquaintance, with a lover's heart.

OR LITERALLY.

The intelligence that has reached me, from the abode of my beloved.

Were it heard by the Turtle-Doves, they would join their complaints with mine.

such instances it must be translated negatively, example "" Zued is not but going." But this it may be presumed is a distinction, without a difference, for, " Zued is not but going," and " Zued is certainly going," convey in fact the same meaning.

Grammarians have assigned the following five places to tin composition.

- 1. It commences a sentence, as وَ زَيْدًا قَ رُبِدًا قَ لَمْ عَلَى اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهُ اللَّهُ اللَّا اللَّهُ اللَّالَّا اللَّا اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُو
- 2. It follows the various tenses derived from عَوْدُ لُو إِنْ زَيْدًا قَادِمُ عَمْ عَمْدُ اللَّهِ عَالَمُ عَامَ
- 3. It occurs after the relative pronoun, as الذي أَوَ الله عَلَمُ الله وَ الله عَلَمُ الله وَ الله عَلَمُ عَلَمُ الله عَلَمُ عَلَّ عَلَمُ عَلِمُ عَلَمُ عَلَمُ
  - 4. It is found in that sentence the predicate of which is preceded by the ? I of corroboration.

5. It precedes the جُوا بِ العَسَمِ as already explained.

EXAMPLE.

"By Gon Zued is certainly standing."

OF THE DERIVATION OF .....

The Arabian Grammarians have amused themselves in tracing the origin of this word, but have produced nothing satisfactory. Their principles of derivation, if indeed they can be said to have any such principles, are so whimsical and extravagant, that it may be doubted, whether they can be matched by those of our most fanciful European Etymologists. They seem to pay little regard to the original sense of the term, from which a word may be derived, and make no scruple to refer it to any word, or indeed to any phrase, provided

2. Of these, the two first, namely in and in i, are used, to verify, or corresponded the sense of a given proposition. (

EXAMPLES.

"Certainly Zued is standing." إِنَّ زَيْلًا قَانِمُ

المنظلف (i. e. the news,) that Zued: سَوْرَيْكَ امْنْطَلِّعَ عَلَى الْمُنْطَلِّعَ الْمُنْطَلِعَ الْمُنْطَلِعِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطَلِعِ اللَّهِي الْمُنْطَلِعِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطِيلِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطِيلِ الْمُنْطِيلِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطِيلِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطِيلِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطِيلُ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطَلِقِ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطِلِقِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْ الْمُنْطِقِيلِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْ الْمُنْطِقِيلِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْطِلِقِيلِي اللَّهِ الْمُنْ الْمُنْطِقِيلِ اللَّهِ الْمُنْ الْمُنْطِلِقِيلُ الْمُنْطِقِيلِي الْمُنْ الْمُنْطِقِيلِي الْمُنْ الْمُنْ

See the new THEATRUM POSTARUM.

It must be remembered that instances of the above government are by no means numerous, and that grammarians have accounted for the anomaly on other principles, which however I do not deem of sufficient importance to repeat.

The word governed by , is sometimes a pronoun understood.

EXAMPLE.

شعر أَنْ مَنْ يَدُ خُلِ الْكَنْيِسَةَ يَوْمًا يَلْقُ فَيْهَا جَأْ ذَرًا وَظِبَا رَ

. "Whoever enters the Synagogue, will certainly find in it beautiful youths of both sexes."

The Arabian Grammarians will not allow the pronoun in the above verse, to be the word governed by the particle, but a understood; viz. of for is —The sense will then run—" the fact is this, wheever, &c."

The particle is sometimes written without the Tushdeed with the Noon Sakin, or quiescent; and in this form has seldom any government, but the grammarians of Koofuh believe that in all

CLASS SECOND.

1. The second class contains six words, termed proposition, governing the Subject in the Accusative or objective case, and the PREDICATE in the NOMINATIVE, viz.

لَعَلَّ , لَيْتَ , لَكِنَّ , كَأَنَّ , أَنَّ اللَّهِ . أَنَّ اللَّهَ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ

Annotation.

The particle of governs generally the subject of a proposition in the accusative or objective case, I say generally, for examples are produced in which it is supposed to govern both terms in the accusative. The following examples may be sufficient to illustrate this.

Approach at night when darkness spreads her sable wings,
But let your steps be silent and cautious, for our centinels are truly Lions.

And in the following example from the and or traditionary records of the Prophet.

" Verily the depth of Hellis equal to a seventy years Journey."

MILTON in like manner measures space by time.

.46 Nine times the space that measures day and night To mortal men."

It is worth remarking that the three great Poets, Homen, Virgil and Milton, have all exerted themselves in extending the idea of the depth of hell. Homen makes it as far beneath the deepest pit of earth, as the heaven is above the earth. II. viii. 16. Virgil twice as far; Æn. vi. 578, and Milton thrice as far; their efforts are commendable no doubt, but not to be compared with the more magnanimous flights of a modern Bard.

judicious selection of the objects of enjoyment, that he may lead a life of unmixed pleasure.

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON THE PREPOSITIONS.

The preceding view of the Arabic prepositions, will be found to contain almost every thing essentially useful. The Annotations are intended to convey a more precise and accurate notion of their extensive force, and the Stories and Extracts will illustrate their practical application to the purposes of speech. Minute discussions on their orgin and grammatical character, I have purposely omitted, not that I consider such discussions, as either useless or unin eresting, but that I am disposed to believe they are unsuitable to the nature of the present work. Theoretical disquisitions are good in their proper place, but they are not in their proper place in an elementary treatise, which should aim rather at the illustration of specific rules, than the discovery or examination of abstract principles.

The Arabic word gamees a tunic, XITWY, is found with little variation in several languages; thus in French, chemise; Italian, camiscia; Spanish and Portuguese, camisa; Hindee kumeez, and Bengalee kamiz. Like its Synonymes in English and Latin, namely shift, and protecta, it seems to have an equivocal meaning, and was a dress peculiar to Arabian devotees.

[I made religious admonition a net.] This will remind the reader of a similar metaphorical expression in the new Testament (See Math. Chap. 4. v. 19. and Mark Chap. 1. and v. 17.) καὶ ποιήσω ὑμᾶς ἀλιεῖς ἀνθράπων, and I will make you fishers of men.

to denote the elegancies and luxuries of life, as in the following verse from the Hureeree, in which Aboo-Zued, commences his apology to Haurs, for having fraudulently assumed the character of a religious itherant:

آلَبُيْتُ زَبُداً The house freed itself of Zued.*

The tribe excluded, or excepted Zued.

The propositions is and is, are in every respect Synonymous with the except that they are never found in the sense of it. They correspond with the word sare, except, unless, besides, &c. and their derivation is altogether as obvious as the English prepositions: whatever grammatical character therefore they may at present assume, it is obvious they cannot be considered in the light of original particles; they all occur in the following Story.

حُدِي ان الرَّهْيْلُ قَالَ يَوْمَّا لِإَصْحَابِهِ لَعَدِ اشْتَعْبَلْتُ الْبُسْكِرَ الْ مَاخَلَا الْبُسْكِرَ الْمَاعَلَ النَّبِيدُ وَالاَ فَيُوْنَ لِعَلَى مِ النَّبْعِ مِنْهُ بَاوَدُ قَبْ اَنُواعَ الْحَلُواءِ مَاعَلَ النَّبِيدُ وَالاَ فَيْدُ وَالاَ فَيْدُ وَالاَ فَيْكُونَ لِعَلَى الْبَعْ مِنْهُ بَاوَدُ قَبْ الْاَسْتُ الْلاَبِسِ الْعَاجِرَةَ خَلا النَّمَا وَلَيْسَتُ الْلاَبِسِ الْعَاجِرَةَ خَلا النَّمَا وَلَا لَهُ اللهَ اللهُ الل

In the first sense it occurs in the following passage in the Qooran, I which Maracci renders,—" Proh deum, non est hic homo!" And Sale copying, or rather translating the Latin,—" O God, this is not a mortal!" The phrase which means properly "God avert," Avertat Deus, hence the common expression with or which absit a te, in some respects resembling the Latin salutation Salvus sis. In its second or exceptive signification it is Synonymous with which and exception it resembles the English save, in the equivoque of Chaucin's Sompnour against the Friar. †

In which he appears to have followed Maracci, as indeed he very frequently does, who renders the phrase will take him up if you do this." In which he appears to have followed Maracci, as indeed he very frequently does, who renders the phrase will sense of the si fneritis hoc facientes," The Commentators on the Quoran, aware of the general sense of the term, have accordingly proposed various interpretations, the most approved of which seems to be that of with hosers. Hoosurn Kashuyee—who says the word he is in the above passage must be rendered, acting with prudence and deliberation, the sense will then be—" Do not slay Joseph, for by that you will draw upon yourselves disgrace and reproach; but if you act with prudence and deliberation, cast him into a pit by the road side, where he may be discovered and taken out by travellers."

OF THE PREPOSITIONS,

and him

1. The prepositions in and in are used to denote the commencement of an action with reference to past time.

EXAMPLE.

مَا رأيتُهُمُّذُ يُومِ الْجَيْعَةَا وَمَنْكُ اللَّهِ الْجَيْعَةَا وَمَنْكُ اللَّهِ الْجَيْعَةَا وَمَنْكُ اللَّ

"The beginning of my not seeing him was Friday."

Annotation.

In the explication of these particles, or rather particle (for they are but different forms of the same word,) Grammarians are very diffuse. They are compounded as some imagine of and if or of and if agreeably to the authority of Akfush is peculiar to the people of Hajaz, and if to the tribe of Tumeem. By the tribe of Soolymee, they are pronounced in and if the grammatical character also, of if or if has given rise to much controversy; some contending that it is at all times a noun, others that it is at all times a particle; the author of the Moognee however seems inclined to favor the latter doctrine.

AS A PARTICLE.

As a particle it is employed in three different senses.

1. With reference to the past time, it is synonymous with 4, as exemplyfied in the Text.

حِكا يَة

SITIO RIY:

A man of learning was sitting one day at the door of his house, and observed a damsel passing by whose extreme beauty attracted his notice. He called out to her and said,—O incomparable pearl, surpassing in beauty all the women of this world, pray stop for a moment, that I may make known to you something that his come into my mind. The damsel upon this turned round, displaying her pearly teeth in a smile, when he addressed her and said. Truly my heart inclines towards you, and dictates the following verse.

Be bounteous of thy charms for beauty's power,.
Boasts but a short and transitory hour.

2. It is sometimes redundant, (زيادة),

EXAMPLE.

There is nothing like him, (i. c. God)

Annotation.

1. It is used to denote مبادرة, viz. mutual celerity, or the instantaneous occurrence of

EXAMPLE.

Some Grammarians however believe that the particle is never found in this sense, but when joined with the sign, or along the house of the Mooguee offers the following example from the Qooran, to prove the contrary. "And therefore certainly the unbelievers shall not prosper." It is not easy to translate the "or particle of astonishment in the above example, without losing the peculiar force of the particle "Maracci renders it—" Papè! certè non prosperabuntur infideles." Sale—" Aha! the unbelievers shall not prosper."

It is used in the sense of المجالة, in answer to the question كالحدي " How are you?", Ans. على دو " in health," Several of the above uses are illustrated in the following Story.

prayer to God for that purpose, in order to release 'Uma from the beating of Zued,' and getting up sometime afterwards to shut the door, I found this very Ass at the threshold, I therefore naturally enough concluded, that my prayer was granted, and that God had transformed him as you see. Kisa e laughed heartily at the supposed studidity of the fellow, and returned to his house exclaiming.—" La huolu wu la qoowwutu illa billahi!"

OF THE PREPOSITION,

كاف

1. THE PREPOSITION ப்டு, is used in the sense of amilitude.

EXAMPLE.

كَ يَكُ كَالْا سَالِ Zued is like a Lion.

Annotation.

The Grammarian Seebuwueh with several others believe this particle to be a noun, synonymous with the word  $\hat{x}$ , and the reason adduced by them for this opinion is, that it occurs in this character in composition and is preceded by a preposition. Its nominal use however they say is restricted to poetry, but the author of the Moogner-ool-Lubeer extends it to every sort of composition, and gives an instance of it in common conversation,  $\hat{x} = \hat{x} + \hat{$

It has some other peculiar uses besides those mentioned by the Commentator.

The Grammarian ran out in a rage, to discover who it was that had made an ass of him, and saw a tall fellow with a large head, to whom he went up and said;—pray Sir, how comes it, that Kisaee whom we know to be a man, is turned into a brute? The senses however in which it is most frequently found, are included in the following Story.

It must be observed however that the words it's are capable of a different meaning, as remarked by some of the Commentators on the Quoran, who interpret them thus "notwither standing his love of that money," &c.

This particle assumes no less than sixteen various forms, the following eight however are those of most frequent occurrence.

It may be translated occasionally, some, a. few, many, frequently, often &c. it occurs in both senses, namely and title in the following extract.

Annotation.

Neither the true character nor meaning of this word seems properly ascertained by Gramma-rians. By some it is considered a noun, by others a particle:—one will have it to signify paucity, another abundance, and for both opinions numerous examples are produced. Moula James, the celebrated Commentator on the Kafeen, says the word was originally formed to denote paucity, but the author of the Mognee-ool-Lubeeb, authority still higher, contends that its proper signification is abundance. From this 'chaos of mingled parposes,' how shall we extricate truth? The task would indied be long and 'edious, and provoke discussions unsuitable to the nature of this work, I shall therefore confine myself to a few observations on its practical application to the purposes of speech.

In the following verse from رَضَ , the word رَضِ is undoubtedly used in the sense of or paucity.

king of Kinduh sent an ambassador to Sumuwwul, to solicit the arms of the deceased, but he refused, and said, I will not deliver up any part of what has been entrusted to me, to any but the lawful proprietor. The king repeated his demand, but he persisted in his refusal, swearing, by the Almighty God, I will not abuse the trust reposed in me, nor act treacherously to gratify the king. When the ambassador reported the determination of Sumuwwul to the king, he marched against him with his army; but Sumuwwul retreated into his fortress, and there secured himself. Then the king besieged it, and the son of Sumuwwul happened to be out of the fort at the time, and the king seized him and made him prisoner, and carried him round the fortress, proclaiming to Sumuwwut: I have taken your son captive, behold he is with me—then he shewed him to him, and said, if you will deliver to me the arms and weapons, I will restore to you your son; if not, I will slay him before your face; so choose which you like.—And Sumuwwur said, do as you please. for I will not violate my faith and promise. Then the king put the son to death in the sight of his father. And the king was baffled in his attempts against the fortress, and obliged to raise the siege and retreat in disgrace; but Sumuwwul bore his misfortune with patience, conscious of having performed his duty with integrity; and when the lawful heirs of Amur-oot-Ques arrived, he delivered to them the armour and weapons in his charge, preferring the observance of his promise and good faith, to the life of his own son; and the faith of Sumuwwul became afterwards proverbial.

Some extracts from his writings will be found in the biography of Ibno-Khilukan, a work that has been eulogized by Sir William Jonas in a strain of amplification, not much inferior perhaps to that of Funuzouq himself:—The passage is so remarkable, that I think it should be laid before the reader. "Porrò scriptoris politissimi Ebn-1-Khalican, opus historicum non magis verborum elegantia et ubertate commendatur, quam illustriorum poetarum versibus, quibus conspergitur. Ac nescio an hic omnibus vitarum scriptoribus sit anteponendus. Est certè copiosior Nepote, elegantior Plutarcho, Laertio jucundior, et dignus est profectà liber, qui in omnes Eurojæ linguas conversus produat." A very correct and elegant copy of this work which I procured at Bagdad is now in my possession; it consists of 1266 octavo pages, and 826 lives, and is considered I believe by the Arabs in general as an impartial compendium of biography, but as to copiousness, jucundity, elegance, and such other pleasing epithets ascribed to it by Sir William, I fear we must attribute them rather to the partiality than candour of the learned orientalist.

yourself to avoid the occurrence of contingent evils, how do you expect to ward them off others, as the Poet says,

You lament at the untimely fate of another?
But say can you extricate yourself from the power of death!

The Calif was astonished at this marvellous adventure, and saw that the almighty from the purity of the Arab's intentions had rescued him from an untimely end—He exclaimed—Vengeance on the head of the envious man!—Envy where it originates, will surely destroy its possessor. He then bestowed a dress of honor on the Arab, appointed him to the vacant office of his minister, and seated him at the head of the assembly on his right hand.

OF THE PREPOSITION,

الى

1. The preposition التهاء is used to denote the bound or termination of interval, (انتهاء الغاية) as applicable to time and space.

EXAMPLE.

I travelled to Koofuh.

Annotation.

There is nothing particular to be remarked of the preposition [1]: it is the correlate of and as applicable to time and place, is properly rendered in English by To, and Till. The senses attributed to it in the text are doubtless those of most frequent occurrence, but there are a few others, which may be probably worthy of a place.

FABLE XVI

to some of his attendants, enquire after the Arab who was formerly with me, and desire the minister to attend. They told him, the Arab was in the city, but that the minister had gone on a message to a certain governor, and had not returned. The Calif desired the Arab to be called before him, and asked him the particulars of the matter, which be related from begining to end. But did you not says the Calif spread a report among the people, that I had a stinking breath? God firbid says the Arab I should report that of which I am ignorant. Your minister could have only told you this from treachery and deceit towards me;—he dug a pit for my destruction, in to which God has caused him to fall himself,—do not therefore grieve for his fate, for the proverb says, "he who digs a pit for his companion, will fall into it himself." Grieve not, for in grief there is no advantage. Unable

To which may be added the two following from the Persian,

* The same idea it has been observed seems common in every language; Good has produced the following examples, in his notes on Lucretius, portion of Garlie. After dinner he said to the Arab,-" when you attend the Calif's assembly, take care to sit a distance from him, for the smell of the Garlie. may offend him." The minister then waited on the Calif and said, -" The Arab whom you made your favorite, and whose company you prefer to ours, has spread about a report that you have a stinking breath." The Arab a little while after made his appearance, and seated himself at a distance from the Calif. The Calif. desired him to come near him, which he obeyed, but covered his mouth as he approached with his sleeve. This action confirmed in the Calif's mind the truth of his minister's story and the treachery of the Arab. He thereupon wrote a letter to one of his governors to the following purport.—" On receipt of this letter, let the bearer be immediately put to death." He then sealed it, and delivered it to the Arabi saying, convey this to such a one and return to me speedily with the answer. The Arab took it, and in going out happened to meet the minister at the door, who enquired where he was going. He replied the Calif has employed me to carry a letter to one of his governors. The minister immediately conjectured, that the Arab would receive some very considerable present from the governor, and he determined in his own mind, to possess it himself,-" what say you, says he, if I release you from the annoyance and fatigue of the journey, and present you at the same time with two thousand Deenars? Most certainly says the Arab, you speak with judgment and in so doing will free me from a very unpleasant embassy.—" You have shot the arrow of your judgment, with the bow of unerring direction." So accept the letter. He then delivered it to the minister and received in return two thousand Decuars. The minister proceeded to the house of the governor and shewed him the Calif's letter. The governor read it, and in conformity to the injunction it contained, ordered the minister to be beheaded. After * It is evident that this example is similar to the one adduced in the text to denote distance and transition; It might therefore be naturally saked why the particle of should not have a similar interpretation; I confess I see no good reason for it, but as the Arabian Grammarians think proper to allow it both applications, I have no wish to dispute the point with them.

An Arab presented himself one day before the Calif Mooatusim Billah, Commander of the Faithful. The Calif made trial of his abilities, and finding him in every respect intelligent and accomplished, appointed him one of his suite, and preferred his society to that of all his other counsellors. Now the Calif had a minister excessively envious whose jealousy was excited by the Arab's promotion, but dreading the anger of the Calif if he attempted anything against him openly, he continued to keep up a shew of friendship, determing to effect his ruin by some secret wile or artifice. He continued therefore daily to encrease in civility towards him, and at length invited him to his house to dinner, and mixed up in his food a large

Annotacion.

It very frequently resembles hors in French and fuor in Italian and in such cases will be translated out of: Take one example out of many from the limit I IRUWAN-OOS-SUFA, where the Dolphin in enumerating his disqualifications for the office of an Embassador says to the King of the fish.

"And I have neither legs to walk with, nor tongue to speak with, nor can I live out of the water even for an hour; but I think the Tortoise is qualified for the task, for he can live out of the water."

The various applications of of as enumerated in page 34, will be found illustrated in the following Story.

Annotation.

The radical distinction therefore between  $\frac{1}{\omega^2}$ , and  $\frac{1}{\omega^2}$ , with their occasional correspondence, and idiomatic peculiarity, do not appear sufficiently illustrated by any two particles in our language: The Greek however will afford a nicer paradel, on which though a matter of mere curiosity, I may be permitted to offer a few remarks.

The preposition  $\partial \pi \partial$  and  $\partial \pi$  are radically distinct in signification, and like  $\partial \pi$  and  $\partial \pi$  are occasionally substituted for each other. In composition  $\partial \pi \partial$  as well as  $\partial \pi$  is said to denote source or origin, and  $\partial \pi$  from  $\partial \pi \partial \pi$ , ceds, is analogous to transition. The first will be found applicable to every use of  $\partial \pi$ , the latter will be illustrated by the following examples.

- * 1. ên, like s is synonymous with after, as en the varieties i. c. post consulatum.
- 2. èn, like the 9th sense of cre means with, as,

  èn πολλε τε περιοντο; i. c. cum ingenti excessu. or as the French say, ασες beaucoup d'avantage.
- 2. en resembles en in its 4th signification, as,
- א. ja like je is frequently used adverbially, as, έκ τε Φανερε, i. c. palam—like the Arabic
- 5. έμ is sometimes explained by the ablative, as, ἐκ θαλάσσης i. e. per mare. ἐκ τέτε τε λόγε hac ratione.

This sense though peculiar will be found frequently to occur in Arabic: the following example the wever from the law case proposed to Aboo Zued in the fifteenth Muqum of Hureener may be sufficient.

Which would be translated by the ablative absolute in Latin, thus,—

Homo obiit relicto fratre. (A man died leaving a brother &c.)

The parallel if necessary, might be extended, but the above will doubtless be deemed sufficient.

* VIGERUS de Idiotismis,

Annotation.

- 1. It is placed before verbs in construction, and is termed bestowing on the verb to which it is prefixed the sense of the infinitive.
  - 2. It occurs as a noun, and in this sense is considered synonymous with .; ide, &c.
- 3. It is a preposition, and in this character has fen different applications; at least this is the opinion of the Grammarians of Busrnh, for the rival schools of Koofuh allow it no other signification, than that of غراب , transition, which is the strict sense of the term though perhaps separation, may be also indirectly inferred. The following example from the history of Tamerlano will show the force of the word جار زَدْ عَجَالُورُ وَ قَالِي السَّرِ الْمِلَى الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمِنْ الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمِنْ الْمُنْ الْمُن
- 1. The preposition denotes distance and transition, (s) and may be then translated off, out of, from, from out.
  - 2. It denotes exchange, (J Sy) answering to _____ for, in exchange of, &c,
- 3. It denotes exaltation, (Junes) ---- on, above, aver,
- 4. It denotes causation, ( Jales ) _____ through, by, from, &c,
- 5. It is synonymous with Sr., after.
- 6. It denotes inclusion or comprehension, (ظرفية ) in.
- 7. It is synonymous with from.
- 8. It denotes instrumentality, (% with, by.
- 9. It is synonymans with , &c.
- 10. It is redundant, (زیادة)

To the whole of these various senses, with the exception of the first, the preposition of seems totally inapplicable. The extensive character of from may render it a more general substitute in trinslation, but it will be found defective in several of the examples and must call in the assistance of other particles.

THE PREPOSITION DE denotes distance and transition, ( ) ( )

EXAMPLE.

I shot the arrow from the bow.

Annotation.

The prepositions which seem formed to denote ideas radically distinct and inconvertible, do notwithstanding very frequently occur as synonymous terms, and as such act reciprocally in composition without any injury to sense or idiom. Of these, the preposition is accreainly represented in our language by from, which in common with its prototype is said to refer to beginning, and to nothing else; but for denoting distance and transition, where shall we find an adequate representative? This question has already been considered by Mr. Lumsden in his Persian Grammar, and after an attentive examination of the subject, he decides with his usual judgment and discrimination in favor of the preposition of. The particle as explained in the Text, is unquestionably represented by of, for both are said to denote distance, and separation,* but the former is used in a multiplicity of relations, widely differing from the radical sense and from each other, and the latter seems restricted in its application to the two significations above mentioned, namely distance and separation, to that the parity seems merely of an etymological nature, and will it is feared tend little to illustrate the singular powers of the Arabic preposition.

in Arabic is used in a threefold capacity.

+ Ore in truth appears the most useless preposition in the English Language and might perhaps be entirely dispensed with: 2s an Adverbindeed it is of greater importance and signifying in this character, Disjunction, absence, privation and distance, may perhaps approximate nearer to the various powers attributed to or .

S T O R Y

The Calif Haroon Rusheed and his minister Giaffar the barmecide, intent one day on a frolic, strolled out of Bagdad together in disguise. A little way out of the city, they happened to meet an old man with sore eyes, driving along an ass. The Calif gave a wink to Giaffar to smoke him. Where are you bound, my old man says Giaffar? That is no concern of yours replied the other—What says Giaffar, not allow me to prescribe something for your eyes?—I want none of your prescriptions, rejoined the old fellow. Nay, don't say so, says Giaffar, you do require it, and this is the recipe. Take a little wind-wood, a quantity of the dust of water, and some mushroom leaves,* these having well mixed up together in a nut-shell, apply to your eyes, and you will find immediate relief. Upon this, the old man reclined backwards upon his ass, and—\(\beta_{\text{COVTA}} \times_{\text{COVTA}} \times_{\text{COVTA}

† This may perhaps he called an obscure paraphase, but I found it difficult to express the bathos of the original, without descending to the oracular language of Giacoma Rodogina, the engastrymythian prophetess. The particle as illustrated in the Text, may be translated as follows:

Annotation.

Besides the above applications of the particle of there are a great variety of others, the whole of which the Arabian Grammarians deduce from the primitive idea Beginning.

The present work will not admit a detail of these various senses; I shall therefore merely notice those of most frequent occurrence.

The particle denotes Causation, as in the following lines of the Poet Furuzdue, in praise of Zuen-ool-Abideen.

Through modesty he bends his looks on the ground; رخضي حماء ويغضي من وها بقه المناه ا

It is synonymous with the particle مع مع عمر و عمل المن يعمر و Zued is more excellent than Umn, which agreeably to the authority of the Grammarian المن المنافقة المنافقة المنافقة والمنافقة والمنا

It is used for على as مَعْلَى عَلَى; —We assisted him against the tribe..

It is used in a peculiar sense to denote termination, bound, or limit, the very opposite of its original signification;—example, I saw him from that place, or I saw him to that place; viz. to the very extent of vision, as we say in English, I saw him from afar. The correspondent preposition De, in the French language is used in a similar manner to denote opposito relations, as Approchez-vous De ce poêle, vous vous chaufferez. Eloignez-vous De ce poêle vous vous, bruleriez.

* In the Latin translation of this example, the preposition ex has the same force as e.g. Recedite ab abminatione ex idolis.

OF THE PREPOSITION.

مىن

I. The Preposition نوس is used to denote the Commencement of Interval (ابتداء الغاية)* as applicable to time and space.

EXAMPLES.

I travelled from Busruh to Koofuh.

أَنْ الْبُصْرَةِ إِلَى الْكُوفَةِ

I slept the whole night, lit. from the beginning to the end of it.

2. It is used in the sense of partage, or participation, (تَبُعینُف)

EXAMPLE.

اَ خَذْ تُ مِنَ اللَّهُ را هُمِ I took some of the Dirhums.

Annotation.

\* The phrase  $\ddot{x}_{2}$  would signify literally the beginning of the end, a sort of phrase ology not likely to convey much information; but the Commentators explain this oxymoron, by asserting that the word  $\ddot{x}_{2}$   $\dot{z}_{2}$  by a\* synecdoche is here synonymous with  $\ddot{z}_{2}$  space or interval.

The word interval which was originally applied to space, is considered by Dugald Stewart in his Philosophical Essays, as now exclusively restricted to time;—whatever may be the case now (which by the by is a very indefinite term,) it certainly was not so restricted by writers in the two last centuries. It is useless to multiply examples, but with following one from Milton, every reader is acquainted.

"Twixt host and host a narrow space was left,

A dreadful interval."

Amazing, amazing, says, the Booby, your capacity is truly supernatural!* and now, if you please, I will give you a specimen of mine, and he related the adventure as above.—Oh husband says the woman, the almighty has favored us in this affair—had we not possessed such consummate wisdom and address, how could we have contrived means to repair our old house? In future therefore annoy yourself no more about domestic concerns; for the Lord is merciful. On my part I shall continue to exert my abilities, and do you the same, and by our mutual talents and dexterity, it is impossible we can want for any thing.

* Johl a sort of encomiastic exclamation of very frequent occurrence in Arabic, and much easier to comprehend than translate. The word is signifies literally flowning out exuberantly, as milk from the udder, &c. and was hence transferred to denote bounty, or liberality, as your bounty flows liberally, and laterally to signify natural capacity, indoles &c. The phrase means literally—your flow of milk is by or through God. i. e. your capacity is divine or supernatural.

The few liberties taken with the original will be readily pardoned by the Arabic Scholar, and to any other class of readers it would be useless to offer explanations. The extreme brevity, simplicity, and terseness of the original diction cannot I believe be preserved in our English idiom; but the solemn gravity of the dialogue defies all power of imitation.

value:-to all this the wiseacre listened with delight and astonishment;-he heard her praised for qualities that he thought no other cow could possess, and determined in his own min't not to lose so rare a barg in, but purchise her himself and baulk the chapmen; he therefore called out to the appraiser, and asked him at what she was going, he replied at fifteen dirhums and upwards. By the head of our Prophet says the Cappochia, had I known before that my cow was such a prodigy of excellence, you would not have eaught me in the market offering her for sale. Now it happened that he had just fifteen dirhums, and no more;—these he thrust upon the broker, exclaiming—the cow is mine—I have the best claim to her! He then seized her, and drove her home, exulting all the way, as if he had found a treasure. On reaching home he enquired eagerly after his wife to inform her of his adventure, but was told she had not returned from market. (There was no remedy but patience, which he despised, so he sat biting his nails in the last stage of the Fidgets.)—At length she appeared, and he sprung up to meet her exclaiming,—wife I have done something to-day, that I believe will astonish you!-I have performed an exploit, that would do honor to the first genius of the age. Patience says his wife; - perhaps I have done something myself to match it:-however hear my story first and afterwards talk of genius if you please. The husband desired her to proceed. When I went to market, says she, I found a man in want of thread; —I showed him mine, which he approved of, and having bargained for it, he agreed to pay me according to the weight. I told him it weighed so much, which he seemed to discredit, and weighed it himself:observing it fall short of the weight I had mentioned, and fearing I should lose the price I at first expected, I requested him to weigh it over again and be certain:-in the mean time taking an opportunity unobserved, I slipt off my bracelets, and put them slily into the scale with my thread.—The scale of course preponderated and I received the full price demanded. Having finished her story. she cryed out-What think you now of the genius of your wife!* (It must be

A silly fellow observing one morning that his house was ready to tumble about his ears from decay, and being destitute of the means of repairing it, went with a long face of rueful cogitation to his wife, and informed her of his miseries. Now the wife was just as great a noodle as himself,—so says she, why, my dear distress yourself about a trifle? You know you have got a cow worth thirty dirhums, take her to the market and sell her for that sum, I have also some thread which I will dispose of to-day, (and between us both we shall raise the wind I warrant it.)

The man instantly rose up, drove the cow to the market, and delivered her over for sale to the public appraiser of cattle. The salesman shewed her to the by standers; directed their attention to all her excellent points,—expatiated on her numerous good qualities, and in short puffed her off as a cow of inestimable

Annotation.

Grammarians have assigned various other relations to the particles the besides those enumerated in the text, but they seem all correlative and may be traced to the primary signification or generic ideal denoted by the term,

The radical import of this particle is therefore UNION, whether absolute or relative.

Absolutely, it denotes possitive or immediate union or co-alescence.

Relatively, it implies simple relation of vicinity or proximity of place.

From the generic idea of union flow several specific relations, which may be translated by the following English prepositions.

- 1. With, denoting the instrument or agent, which is expressed in Latin by the ablative case as
- 2. By, or on account of, denoting the efficient or final cause, the means by which any thing is performed; also in swearing.
  - 5. Along with, association, society, or connexion.
  - 4. For, in exchange of.
  - 5. In, denoting the relation between the object contained and that containing it.

It corresponds very nearly in all its relations with the English preposition by.

same idea is expressed in Arabic by the word  $z_1 = 0$ , meaning familiarly state, case, &c. which a fanciful grammarian after the usual mode of etymological retrogradation might trace to the verb  $z_1 = 0$  he turned, inverted or declined, and hence argue that the term was thus significantly applied ingrammar, to express the variations, or declensions, of a noun from its upright form  $z_1 = 0$  through its various declining forms." ( This is quite as plausible a derivation as the other, but I am persuaded it never entered the mind of an Arabian Grammarian. Who would not smile to hear a physician etymologize on the word case, and inform his Patient, that it signified literally falling, implying as it were the decline or fall of his health from its upright form?—Yet the physician's etymology is every way as good as the grammarian's; or rather they are both good for nothing.

enough, and worthy the ingenuity of Harris, and his friends the Peripatetics. But what authority is advanced for supposing, that words when first applied as terms of art, were applied in their primitive rather than in their consequential or metaphorical significations?
There is no authority for such a supposition, but authority directly against if. The word casus in Latin is considered synonymous with eventus and exitus, and has many other senses besides its literal one:—case in English is never used in its original import, and Aristotle+ himself applies literary, to the variations of the noun and verb, not only to what we term declension and conjugation, but even to the singular and plural number. But this is not a work for minute discussions on grammatical subtelties and verbal peculiarities, I shall therefore conclude with observing that the vern a noun in the AORIST CASE. They are called go or PARTI-

* They are called PARTICLES OF ATTRACTION, because they are said to attract the sense of the antecedent word to the consequent, pointing out at the same time the relation subsisting between both, and for a similar reason are also termed of connexive particles. They are applied like the prepositions of other languages in a two-fold capacity; Κατὰ παξάθιστε by way of juxta position, and Kara σύιθεσει by way af composition; viz. some of them are seperable, and some inseperable. They invariably render the governed word AUJROOR, which some grammatians have rendered the Genitive case, but what it may be asked in the genitive case? ' le fils uine de nomanitif,' says Du Marsais, *-the eldest son of the nominative! 'and is formed to express all relations commencing FROM it itself,' says Harris, in contradistinction to the dative, which expresses all relations tending to itself.' If this be the true character of the genitive, it is obvious it cannot be applicable to the term mujroor, as the prepositions of from and it to, govern the same case, though the relations they are formed to denote, are directly opposed to each other. If the metaphorical or rather whimsical language of the French grammarian be admissible, it must be allowed that the claims of this case to hereditary pre-eminence are much superior to those of tho fils alne, as it may be said to inherit a sort of trinal consanguinity, or triplicity of filiation possessing in itself a complex cognation, with its progenitor the nominative, which includes not only the rank and powers of the eldest son, the genitive, but of the two younger also, the dative and ablative.

It might perhaps be called the RELATIVE CASE, if it were not that every case is strictly speaking relative, a case being generally defined by grammarians—the special difference in a noun, according to the different relations that things bear to one another; yet the Messieurs De Port Royal who copied this definition from Sanctius, thave strangely enough, and almost in the same page restricted the term, relative to the dative. On a question however merely nominal it is not necessary to be captious:—in re levi noluimus esse morosi;—the arbitrary distinctions of language have no essential connexion with he operations of words; the name is seldom found significant of the office. But although the equality of words to things be often neglected, it seems necessary in technical appellations to be as precise as possible:—to the two first terminations or cases of an Arabic noon, the terms nominative and accusative are sufficiently applicable, but the compre-which it is applicable is influenced by words. The second on the contrary as its name imports has, no reference to words, but relates merely to sense: the one is extraneous, the other intrinsic, and both seem properly enough designated by our own grammatical terms, vehall and Absolute.

The analogous classes will be illustrated in their proper place, and it therefore only remains to be remarked, that the government of the particles extend to all the cases, while some of them possess the peculiar properly of changing the of the final letter of verbs, into and others that of affecting the sound of the terminating letter, with the mark for the constitutions seem to correspond with the antithesis and apocope of Eurupean languages and should therefore agreeably to our notions of grammar, be rather included in the rules of presody than inflexion.

HUNDRED GOVERNING POWERS.

BOOK II.

INTRODUCTION.

The author of the Miut Amil* enumerates in Arabic syntax one hundred governing powers, of which some are in Arabic syntax one hundred or verbal, † and some or Absolute.

* The grammatical treatise termed And Anil, on which the present work is a Commentary, contains agreeably to the literal meaning of the title, one hundred governing powers: these are divided into co-ordinate and subordinate classes, with reference to their general and particular offices, and the author with an ingenuity characteristic of the systematic refinement of an Arabian grammarian has reduced the whole to an exact centenary of governing powers: in this he was doubtless as much influenced by numerical symmetry, as logical or grammatical precision, but the arrangement is convenient and sufficiently accurate for all useful purposes.

and معنَّهُ are relative nouns, from النظاء utterance, or vocal expression, and معنَّة signification, meaning. The first signifies literally, verbal, and denotes that the government to

For it must be remembered, that in this language, there is a state in whick nouns are found to exist, before they are distinguished by any marks of annexation, or indications of case, such for instance as the word (deprived of the tunween,) which is considered the primary, or radical form of the noun, and must necessarily be connected with some other word in construction, before it can assume any grammatical character, indicative of case. The nominative therefore, which always denotes a certain specific relation, is distinguished by a termination or mark of inflection, significant and peculiar to itself, superscribed over the final letter of the noun in its radical form, as

Under the first species of government, namely the VERBAL, or relative, are included two distinct classes, or the PRESCRIPTIVE, and ANALOGOUS. Of these, the first relates to a certain specific number of words, the government of which is settled and authorized by long usage and custom; while the latter is restricted to the government of a certain class of words, in which you reason by analogy from one to another, and consequently, determine their influence in speech to be every where regular and uniform.

The second form of government, which has been translated absolute or independent, is of a twofold nature. The first governing the subject and predicate: the second the aorist tense of a verb, which is said to resemble in sundry particulars a noun, and, in the absence of any verbal governor, assumes the vowel Zummu, viz. the final letter of the tense is marked of the second and shall be noticed in their proper place. The government, in both instances, is said to flow from the sense, and to be totally independent of any other word in construction, and seems therefore to resemble that case, in the greek language, which certain grammarians have termed the nominative absolute.

The above remarks will perhaps be sufficient to convey a general idea of Arabic government. For a more minute and particular analysis of the subject, together with the various significations and peculiarities of the hundred governing powers, the reader is referred to the commentary on this book.

BOOK FIRST.

OF THE ABSOLUTE GOVERNMENT.

THE CLASS termed or AESOLUTE, has two peculiarities of regimen. Of these, the first requires, in the absence of any verbal governor, the subject and predicate in the nominative case: the second is the Aorist tense of a verb, which, in the absence of certain governing particles, receives the vowel Zummu; or in other words, the final letter of the tense is marked

End of the Meeut Aamil.

At the conclusion of the first book, it may not be unuccessary to offer a few general observations, on the nature, divisions and peculiar distinctions of THE HUNDRED GOVERNING POWERS, a clear and comprehensive conception of which will tend to facilitate, in a considerable degree, the future progress of the student.

The subject of the MEEUT AAMIL, is grammatical regimen, or government; and is defined to be that part of Syntax, which regulates the dependency of words, and the alterations which one occasions in another.

This is divided into two general classes or divisions: the first termed verbal, or the relative or dependent government; in contradistinction to the second, which flows from the sense, and is therefore properly absolute or independent.

In the VERBAL or relative, the word governed necessarily depends on, or is influenced by, some other word in construction: the Absolute is totally independent of all such influence, having the intrinsic power of assuming a certain grammatical character, or indication of case, which in the Arabic language is invariably NOMINATIVE.

MEEUT AAMIL:

OF THE ANALOGOUS GOVERNMENT.

THE CLASS termed قيا سي or analogous, has seven governors, and consists of the following parts of speech, viz.

A yerb UNIVERSALLY.

The government of the above parts of speech will be exemplified in the second book,

The thirteenth class contains seven words, termed of class contains seven words, termed of certainty, which govern a double accusative, or two nouns in the objective case, the second having some descriptive or explicative reference to the first: viz.

EXAMPLES.

ا خسبت زید افاضاک I conceived, or looked upon Zeid as learned.

I considered or imagined Bukr sleeping.

I saw that Zeid was intelligent, or wise.

آمِينًا عَلْمُ I knew that Zeid was trust worthy.

I found the house mortgaged.

I supposed Satan a thanksgiver.

The cleventh class contains four words, termed مُنْعَالُ مُعَارِبُة or veres of PROPINQUITY, which govern the noun in the NOMINATIVE: viz.

CLASS TWELFTH.

or VERBS أَنْعَالُ الْهُدُّ جِوالذَّمْ The twelfth class contains four words, termed OF PRAISE AND CENSURE, which govern generic nouns made definite by the article I in the nominative case. viz.

* There is a distinction in the meaning and application of the above four verbs of Propinquity, which shall be noticed in the proper place.

رَكَانَ , صَارَ , اَصْبَحَ , اَمْسَىٰ , اَضْحَىٰ , ظَلَّ , بَاتَ , مَابَرِحَ , وَكَانَ , مَانَتِمَ , مَازَالَ , مَاانَانْغَتَ , مَادَامَ , لَيْسَ

Zeid was standing.

The poor man became rich.

In the morning Zeid was sagacious, or intelli-

In the evening Zeid was reading.

In the forenoon, Zeid was travelling.

In, or during the day Zeid was a faster.

Zeid did not desist from being learned, viz. he مَا بَرَحَ زَيْدٌ عَالِهَا was always learned.

Zeid did not leave off, or was always standing.

Zeid did not cease from, or was always learned.

Bukr did not fail to be, or was always wise.

Sit as long as Zeid sits.

Zeid is not standing.

CLASS ELEVENTH.

النَّوْعُ الْحَادِي عَشَرا نْعَالُ الْبُعَارَبَةِ تَرْنَعْ اسْباً وَاجْدا

رُوَيْدُ أَيْدًا أَيْ الْمَهِلَ Release, or permit Zeid to go for a little.

الْهُ وَيُوا الْكِيْ وَ عُزَيْدًا الْكِيْ وَعُزَيْدًا الْكِيْ وَعُزَيْدًا

Seize Zeid. كُوْنَكُ زَيْدًا إِلَيْ خُذْ زَيْدًا

Be sure you continue by Zeid, viz. do not let عَلَيْكَ زَيْدًا اَيَ ٱلْزِمْ زَيْدًا Zeid go till you have gained your object.

Come to Zeid. حَيَّهُلْ زَيْدًا أَيْ إِيُّت زَيْدًا

آيُ خُذْ زَيْدًا أَيْ خُلْزَيْدًا أَيْ خُلْزَيْدًا

The remaining three, have a preterite signification, and govern the noun in the nominative: viz.

EXAMPLES.

Zeid was distant.

شَيَّانَ زَيْدُ اَيْ بِعُدُورَيْدُ

Zeid was distant.

Zeid and Amr mutually separated.

Zeid hastened or made haste.

CLASS TENTH.

The tenth class contains thirteen words, termed اَفْعَال نَا قَصَه or DEFECTIVE VERBS, which govern the noun in the NOMINATIVE, and the predicate in the OBJECTIVE CASE. VIZ.

The 1st of these is عَشْر , ten, when compounded with عَشْر qne, اَتْنَيْن two &c. as far as ninety-nine.

EXAMPLES.

رَجَالًا رَجَالًا (There) came to me eleven men.

The 2d is, (How many?), as, كَرْجُلُاعِنْدُكَ, How many men are with (lit. near) you?

The 3d is, كَذَا دُرْهَا عَنْدَ كَ (Some), as, كَذَا دُرُهَا عَنْدَ كَ You have got some money. (Dirhums.)

The 4th is, کاین زجالعندک (Some), or, how many as, کاین زجالعندک, How many men are with you?

CLASS NINTH.

اَلَّوعُ التَّاسِعُ كَلِيَّاتُ تُسَبَّى أَسْبَاءَ اللَّانْعَالِ بَغْضُها تَرْنَعُ وَبَعْضُهَا تَنْصِبُ

The ninth class contains nine words, termed or verbal or verbal nouns, viz. nouns having a verbal signification: of these six have an imperative sense, and govern the noun in the accusative or objective case: viz.

ruted. The cardinal number (eleven) for instance, as exemplified in the text, is the mere name of a certain species of quantity, and therefore incapable of conveying to the mind any other idea than a certain aggregate of units. 'There came to me eleven'—eleven what?—men, horses, or dogs? Some word is evidently required to expel the obscurity, or in other words, to separate some specific object from the mass of possibles, in order to give a determinate character to the sentence: this word the Arabian Grammarians have therfore with analogical propriety termed the interior or, as it may be rendered in English, the noun of specification.

and are synonymous, the latter however is sometimes used interrogatively.

The seventh class contains nine words, which, prefixed to the acrist, render the final letter quiescent: they possess a conditional or hypothetical signification like the particle of viz.

به من یکرمنی He who honors me, I will honor him.

Whatever you make I will make.

سُفَيْ تَذْهُبُ اَنْهُبُ اَنْهُبُ اَنْهُبُ اَنْهُبُ اَنْهُبُ

Wherever you are there will I be.

أَيْنَهَا تَجُلْسُ اَجْلِسُ اَجُلِسُ اَجُلِسُ اَجُلِسُ اَجُلِسُ اَجْلِسُ اَجْلِسُ اَجْلِسُ اَجْلِسُ اَجْلِسُ ا اَنَّى تَعْدُ اَتَّعْدُ اَتَّعْدُ اَتَّعْدُ اَتَّعْدُ اَتَّعْدُ اَتَّعْدُ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ اللّ

سُهُ مُا اَنْ هُبُ اَنْ هُبُ

انْ مَا تَغْعُلُ ٱ فَعُلْ مَا مَعْدُ At the time, or, when you do it, I will do it.

CLASS EIGHTH.

The eighth class contains four nouns, which govern a general or indefinite noun in the objective case, being the ** or, noun of specification.

* The word signifies literally separation, segregation, and is applied in Arabic Grammar, to denote the second of two substantive nouns, when employed for the purpose of explaining some uncertainty, supposed to exist in the preceding noun to which it is im-

اَسُلُمْتُ اَنَّى تَنْ كُلُوا لَجِنَةٌ (Answer) اَسْلُمْتُ اِنْ تَنْ كُلُوا لَجِنَةً الْمَالِيَةِ الْمُلْمِينِ الْمُلْمُلُمِينِ الْمُلْمِينِ الْمُلِمِينِ الْمُلْمِينِي الْمُلْمِينِ الْمُلْمِينِ الْمُلْمِينِ الْمُ

CLASS SIXTH.

The sixth class contains five Partieles, which being prefixed to the aorist tense of verbs, render the final letter quiescent; viz.

EXAMPLES.*

اَنْ تُكُوِ مُنْ يُ اَكُو مِكَ If you honor, or respect me, I will respect you.

الْمُ يَضُو بُ زُيْدٌ

Zeid did not strike.

الْمَا يَضُو بُ زُيْدٌ

Let him (Zeid) strike.

الْمَا يُضُو بُ رُيْدٌ

Do not strike Zeid.

CLASS SEVENTH.

إَلَّنُّوعُ السَّابِعُ السَّابِعُ السَّاعَ تَجْزِمُ الْغِعْلَ الْمُضَارِعَ عَلَىٰ مَعْنَىٰ إِنْ

* The Particle is synonymous with if. and are negative Particles, distinguished in their application thus. is used to denote a simple an absolute negative, importing that the action was never performed at any past period of time. Examples and the did not beat. He never did beat. For an explication of the Particles in Class the seventh, see the Commentary.

(All) the tribe came to me except Zeid. (يَاعُبْدَ اللَّهِ اَيَاعُبْدَ اللَّه الله کو نیافید الله کو Servant of God! أَيْ عَبْدَ اللَّهُ

CLASS FIFTH.

The fifth class contains four Particles, which being prefixed to the agrist of verbs, change زُصْب of the final letter into رُفع , viz.

آر فت اَن تَضَرِب { I disliked, or had an aversion to your beating { (or to this, that thou shouldest beat.)

لَىٰ تَغْعَلَ Thou never wilt do (or act.)

I came to you, that you might grant me my right.

signification. اي هيا أيا يا and I are vocative particles: of which the 1st is used indifferently whether the object is distant or near. The 2d and 3d when the object is distant: the 4th and 5th when the object is near.

* The particle الع مصدرية because it gives the verb to which it is prefixed the sense of the infinitive. of restricts the verb to the future time in a confirmed negative sense, means cause or motive will synonimous with then, at that time, and restricts the verb to the future time.

I hoped or perhaps Amr is a goer out.

CLASS THIRD.

EXAMPLES.*

Zeid is not a learned man.

There is no man more learned than thou.

CLASS FOURTH.

The fourth class contains seven Particles, that govern the noun alone in the OBJECTIVE CASE. viz.

The water was equal with the wood.

* in and if are synonimous negative particles, and are distinguished in their application thus; if precedes either a definite or indefinite noun; if an indefinite only.

+ The objective particle s or wao governing the Acc. CASE, always means with. I has an exceptive

MEEUT AAMIL.

The tribe (all) came to me except Zeid. حَاْءَ نِي الْغَوْمُ حَاشَا زَيْدٍ

I saw (all) the tribe except Zeid.

آرُايُتُ الْغَوْمَ خَالَازَيْدٍ

I passed by (all) the tribe, except Zeid.

CLASS SECOND.

The second class contains six particles, that govern the noun in the ACCUSATIVE or OBJECTIVE CASE, and the predicate of the proposition in the NOMINATIVE. viz.

EXAMPLES.*

ان زید اقایم Certainly Zeid is a stander.

المُعْنَى أَنَّ زَيْنَا مُنْطَلَّعُ (It reached me, or it was known to me, that Zeid was certainly a goer.

هُ السَّلَّ عَنْ السَّلَّ عَنْ السَّلَّ عَنْ السَّلَّ عَنْ السَّلَّ عَنْ السَّلَّ عَنْ السَّلَّةِ عَنْ السَّلَّ

Zeid stood, but Amr is a sitter.

الْمَدُّ الشَّبَابُ عَايُدٌ Would to God, that youth was a returner.

حکم دلائل ویرایین سے مزین، متنوع ومنفرد موضوعات پر مشتمل مفت آن لائن مکتب

* The following are the usual significations of the above six particles. Colerctainly, verily, truly. The same. Colerctainly, verily, but, nevertheless, &c. and in the sense of supplication or wishing: the distinction between them is this, that the former is used indifferently to express a wish, whether possible, or impossible of attainment, while the latter is restricted in its application to the first. It may be translated—pehaps, it may be.

رَحْتَىٰ وَ الْوَالْقُسَم رَتَاءُ الْقَسَمُ رَحَا شَا رَخَالًا وَعُدَا

EXAMPLES.**

ا مررت بزید I went near and passed Zeid.

I travelled from Bussoralı to Koofa. سُرتُ مِنَ الْبَصْرَةِ" اللِّي الكُّوفَة

I shot the arrow from the bow. رَمْنِثُ السَّهُمَ عَنِ الْغُوسِ

Zeid is in the house.

الْبَالُ لَزَيْد The property is Zeid's, or belongs to Zeid.

ا رُبَّرُجُل لَغَيْنُهُ I visited a few men.

Zeid is on the terrace, or platform of the house.

كَ كُونُ كُوا لَا يَكُوكُوا لَا يَكُوكُوا اللهِ Zeid is like a lion.

I did not see him since Friday.

ا کلت السبکة حتی راسرا السبکة حتی راسرا

إِوَّا لِلْهُ لَا نُعَلَّنَ كُذَا By God, I will certainly do so.

* The above particles admit of various significations; the following are most usual, - signifies occasionally, with, from, by, in &c. of from. of from &c. if to, until, even to. is in. appropriation, possession, an oath. , some, a few. Le upon, above. Similitude, as, like. and wince, from. even to, as far as. and " are both particles of swearing and " Me and las are nearly synonimous, and signify, besides, except &c. For a more particular explication of their various senses, see the Commentary.

The ____, or prescriptive government, is divided into thirteen classes.

CLASS FIRST.

The first class contains seventeen particles, or prepositions, which govern the noun alone in the GENITIVE OR RELATIVE case. viz.

The prescriptive is divided into 13 classes. (Prepositions which govern the NOUN alone in the GEN. or RELATIVE The 1st class contains 17 (Particles, govern the noun in the Acc. or objective and the predi-CATE in the NOMINATIVE. (Particles, govern the NOUN in the NOM. and the PREDICATE in the OBJECTIVE CASE. 7 Particles, govern the NOUN in the OBJECTIVE CASE. (Particles, prefixed to the agrist tense of verbs, change the ruffu of the final letter into nusub. 6th 5 Particles, prefixed to the agrist render the final letter quiescent. (Words, prefixed to the agrist render the final letter quiescent-they 7th possess a conditional or subjunctive meaning, like the particle. ( Nouns, govern an indefinite noun in the genitive or relative case, 8th when employed as the Tumeez or noun of specification. (Words, called VERBAL NOUNS, of which 6 govern the OBJECTIVE 9 CASE, and have an imperative meaning; and 3 the NOMINATIVE and 9th (have a preterite signification. (Defective verbs, govern the noun in the now. and predicate in the accusative. 4 VERBS OF PROPINQUITY, govern the noun in the NOMINATIVE CASE. (Verbs of PRAISE AND CENSURE, govern generic nouns, with the definite article, in the nominative case. VERBS OF DOUBT AND CERTAINTY, govern a double accusative, or 7 two nouns in the objective case, the second explaining or announcing some thing regarding the first.

The ANALOGOUS COVERNORS, are 7, and are as follow; 1st averb whether active or neuter.

2d A derivative adjective—3d a participle active. 4th A participle passive. 5th An infinitive.

6th A noun governing another in the genitive case. 7th An isme tamm.

The Absolute is of 2 sorts. 1st The Now. Absolute. 2d The Aorist.

PREFACE.

If to the two elementary works contained in this volume, be added the first and fifth Chapters of the Mishau,* or rather perhaps a portion of the Hidayut-oon-Nuho, a body of syntax will be formed sufficiently comprehensive for every practicable purpose whatever; but if the student aspires to a higher and more accurate knowledge of the subject, and would understand not only the rules, but the reasons of the rules, with all the delicacies, refinements and peculiarities of this admirable system of speech, I would recommend to him a Grammar of the Arabic Language, by Mr. Lumsden, the Persian and Arabic Professor in the College of Fort William, a work which I am persuaded will be found to exhibit, the most profound and masterly analysis of the language, that has ever been presented to the public.

CALCUTTA, 22d July, 1814.

* The Misban is the third, and the Hidayut-oon-Nuho the fourth of the five Books on Arabic grammar, published in Calcutta in 1802.

My constant guide and companion in almost every stage of this translation, was Mouluvee Umanut-Oollah, a learned native of India, formerly on the establishment of the College of Fort William, and a more able guide or skilful and judicious instructor, I know not well where I could have found.

For the poetical versions of sundry passages from the Arabian poets, which will be found occasionally interspersed through the notes, I am entirely* indebted to the kindness of my friend Mr. Wilson, the learned and elegant translator of the Megha Duta,† and to Captain Roebuck of the College, who afforded me his assistance in conducting the work through the press, I beg leave to offer my best thanks.

I have no further observations to make on the works here translated, and of the translation itself any observation on my part must be uscless; I shall therefore offer none: it may speak for itself or be silent. The typographical errors are indeed rather numerous, and require some apology. I believe they were occasioned in a considerable degree, by the rapidity with which a large portion of the work was hurried through the press, for it is certain, that the greater part of the commentary, with all its appendages of extracts, stories, annotations, &c. were prepared, translated and printed off in something less than five months. I have endeavoured however to rectify these mistakes as well as I could, by a table of errata, which will be found in general to consist of little more than transpositions in the Vowel points. The errors in the English part, are not likely to embarrass the student, and I have accordingly omitted to record them.

of primitive, derivative and metaphorical acceptations exhibited at one view, in an easy and regular scheme of explication.

I have pursued this plan throughout the volume. A story is appropriated to every preposition, and afterwards to every class of governors consecutively. The words thus explained, are distinguished by figures in the original, that the student may be enabled to compare their use with the explanations given in the commentary, and the whole is accompanied with an easy English version.

The stories thus given, are partly original and partly extracted from books, either printed or in manuscript. Those at the commencement of the commentary, were prepared by Suevid Uhmud, a learned Arab, of the College of Huneefu, who accompanied me from Bagdad in the year 1812. The sudden and unexpected death however of this most excellent scholar, a few months after his arrival in Calcutta, deprived me, at an early period, of the benefit of his services, and forced me, reluctantly to relinquish the extensive plan of illustration, which he had himself originally proposed, and by which I had hoped to diversify and enliven my commentary, with much curious and intersting matter. This pleasing scheme however was in a great measure prevented by his death. I had no choice of materials, and was frequently obliged to adopt a number of insipid stories, which under other circumstances, I should certainly have rejected. The most entertaining portion of them were supplied me by an ingenious native of Yemen in Arabia, Nathaniel Sabat,* whose literary talents and acquirements, are well known in India, and for whose useful assistance in this department of my work, I am under considerable obligations.

the text; the second by Moolla Jamee the Poet, and the third by Ruzee-ood-Deen Moolnammud of Astrabad. The Wafeea though a very valuable work, is perhaps but little read; the Shurhoo Moolla, as it is generally called, is a logical and argumentative comment on the text, and is every where studied in India, but the commentary by Ruzee (from which indeed the greater part of Jamee's is supposed to be borrowed) is the most voluminous and elaborate of all, and is justly considered a chef d'œuvre of grammatical science,

Of the other works, namely the Shurhoo Misbah, by Taj-ood-Deen Moohummud of Asferan; the Qutr-oon-Nuda, by Aboo Abdoolla Moohummud Bin Yoosoof Hisham, and the Shurhoo Alfeca, by Shuckh Aboo Moohummud Abdoolla Bin Abdoorruhman, more generally known by the name of Ibn Uqeel, I have nothing particular to offer. They are all popular works in Arabia, and the latter in particular, seems to possess the same rank in Bagdad, as the Shurhoo Moolla does in India, a fact which is certainly somewhat remarkable, as the former is as a much famed for simplicity, as the latter is for subtilty. The same may be observed of the Mooghnee-ool-Lubeeb, by far the most useful work on Arabic grammar with which I am acquainted. It has supplied me with almost every thing valuable on the particles,

In order to illustrate with greater effect, the practical applications of these most subtle parts of speech, as they are sometimes called, I have added at the conclusion of the annotations on each, an Arabic story, in which the particle will be found to occur under all the senses ascribed to it in the commentary. The natural and popular use of the word will, by this means be better understood, its lighter and more evanescent shades of meaning, rendered more obvious and determinate, and the whole series writing, and may probably amuse others. To extract mirth or humour however out of Arabic grammar, must I am persuaded be looked upon as a hopeless attempt, an attempt perhaps not altogether dissimilar to that on record of certain ingenious people in the Island of Mateotechny, who are said to have employed themselves, in gathering grapes from thorns, and figs from thistles; or of others, who pitched nets to catch the wind, and caught—cock lobsters!*

The original works from which I have selected the materials for the notes are as follow: Shurhoo Wafeea, Shurhoo Moolla, Shurhoo Ruzee, Shurhoo Misbah, Shurhoo Alfeea, Qutr-oon-Nuda, Moo-FUSSUL<sup>g</sup> and the Mooghnee-ool-Lubeeb. Of these, the three first are commentaries on the Kafeea; the first by Ibnool Hajib, the author of sentence 'a composition of the collecteral and accidental significations of this particle, under the various relations of instrumentality, causality or causation, concomitance or association, substitution or exchange, inclusion or comprehension, with some others, which may be seen by refering to the translation, and each of these senses he elucidates by one familiar example.

This is the general mode of analysis, as adopted in the commentary. The words are all considered either separately or in classes, their original and accidental significations defined and illustrated, and their analogous and anomalous syntactical structures pointed out and determined. The etymological formation of some words are occasionally explained, but this is but seldom, and only in particular cases, where words apparently simple, are shewn to be compound, as the formed from the particle with of similitude and the Pronoun 15.

The commentary in short, is a simple introduction, comprising a distinct general view of the essential parts of Arabic regimen and nothing more. To render it however as extensively useful as possible, I have transcribed from the works of several of the most eminent Arabian grammarians, whatever appeared to me best calculated to illustrate the force and application of the several governing powers, and these with my own observations and remarks subjoined to the translation, form a perpetual commentary on the text, which I trust will be found useful.

To these annotations sometimes critical and sometimes explanatory, I have occasionally added others of a more light and miscellaneous nature. They are not indeed of much importance to the work, and might well enough have been omitted, but they amused me at the time of Such is the life of Abdoolqahir, as handed down to us by two very popular historians, and the amount of the whole is simply this, that he was an eminent grammarian, that he wrote the Mooghnee, the Joomul, and the Miut Amil, and that he died in the year 474 of the Hejira.

There is no date to the Commentary, nor can I pretend to settle one, I suspect however that it is comparatively modern. The author, at the conclusion of it, speaks of Ibn Malik the grammarian, who died A. H. 672, but if D'Herbelot's information be correct, it will probably give an antiquity of 500 years to the work, as Ibn Hisham is known to have died in 762.

The Miut Amil must be considered as a mere text-book, in which the governing powers of the Arabic language are arranged into appropriate classes, their grammatical offices defined, and their primitive senses illustrated by easy familiar examples. The commentary is an enlarged exposition of the governing powers, after the precise order laid down in the text, for it preserves the same arrangement of the parts, the same definitions of the rules, and the same examples illustrative of the original force of the terms, adding however to the primitive or current senses, the more immediately consequential or secondary acceptations:—Let us explain by an example.

The Preposition which is the first, in the first class of grammatical agents, is stated simply in the text, to be a Genitive Particle, and one example is subjoined to illustrate its force. The commentator repeats the rule regarding its regimen, but adds its primitive acceptation, which he states to be Union, and this he considers as two-fold: either absolute, as denoting actual coalition or cohesion of parts, or relative, as implying proximity or contiguity of person or place. The first he exemplifies by the phrase which is sick, or sickness is inherent in him. The latter, by the with Abdoolqahir and his writings, and the account he gives of the Mijut Amil in particular, is a demonstrative proof that he was ignorant of the simplest principles of Arabic grammar.

This is all the information I have been able to collect of the author of the Miut Amil and his commentators. Something more might perhaps have been found had I been more industrious, but I confess I did not think it necessary to toss over half the manuscripts in the College Library, for the purpose of adding one or two obscure annecdotes to the life of Shuekh Abdoolqahir. Neither would the search have rewarded my pains, for Biography is a very different thing in Asia from what it is in Europe. There are no Pater Noster Rows, nor Cadell and Davies's in Arabia, and consequently there are no Boswells nor Piozzis. A grammarian may write five pages of Syntax there, without having five quarto volumes of Memorabilia recorded of him: for who could copy them, or who would read them? The life of an Arabian worthy indeed, is frequently dispatched in a line, and is seldom more entertaining or instructive, than a hic jacet, or a village epitaph. 'His name, his years,' with a ruzeeullaho anho,* or a 'holy text' from the Qooran, supply the place, "of fame and clegy," and constitute the brief memorials of a literary career.+

+ I ought perhaps to apologize for venturing this opinion of Arabian biography, for Sir Wm. Jones, whose authority will doubtless be considered decisive, has given a very different account of the matter. He prefers the biography of Ibn Khalikán, not only to that of Nepos and Laertius, but even to that of Plutarch himself; nay he seems inclined to rank the historian above all the biographers of ancient and modern times. Nescio an hic omnibus vitarum scriptoribus sit anteponendus. by Ebn Hescham, whose name as a grammarian, he probably confounds with Hoosam-ood-Deen, who is stated in the Kushf-ooz-Zoonoon, to be one of the commentators on the Mijut Amil;* it is possible however, that D'Herbelot alludes to Shuekh Jumal-ood-Deen Aboo-Moohummud Yoosoof, who was also known by the name of Ibn Hisham, but as no such commentary is attributed to him, in either of the Biographical works above alluded to, I feel some hesitation in allowing him to be the author of the Shurhoo Mijut Amil. Abdoolqahir appears to be the first grammarian, who reduced the governing powers of the Arabic language to a definite number, † and as he lived at a time when Grecian literature of every kind was ardently cultivated in Arabia, and when in fact almost every learned Arab made a merit of studying and copying the philosophical writings of the Greeks, it is not very improbable that the Centiloquium of Ptolemy, ‡ a work, on Astrology, which must have been popular at that period in Arabia, gave him the first hint for the title of his treatise on regimen, and produced the Miut Amil, or Hundred governing powers.

The extreme brevity of the text has occasioned many commentaries on the Mijut Amil, but that which usually accompanies it in this country, and which I have here translated, is generally supposed I believe to be written by a native of India. D'Herbelot mentions but one commentary

I have now to offer a few words on the grammatical works here translated, but of their authors unfortunately I know little or nothing. The commentator indeed attributes the Mijut Amil to Abdoolqahiribno Abdirrihman of Goorgan,* whom he styles the most excellent of the learned, but he does not say in what age he lived, nor in what his excellence consisted, and we are left to form our own opinion of his merits, from five pages of Arabic syntax! I find his name however in the Mirat-ool-Junan,† with a few particulars, which as we have nothing better, we must substitute for a biographical memoir.

Abdoolqahir, surnamed from eminence, Alnuhwee, or the grammarian, was of the sect of Shafei, and one of the followers of Abool Hussun al Asharee. Besides the Miut Amil and Joomul, (another introduction to Arabic Syntax,) he wrote a learned commentary termed Almooghnee, in three volumes, upon the Eezah, besides several other celebrated works on grammar and rhetoric, and died in the four hundred and seventy-fourth year of the Hejira, or about the middle of the eleventh century of the Christian era. cultivated with success, we shall find them pursue (with the exception perhaps of music,)* the exact course of studies, as practiced by the Christian philosophers in the middle age.

* I say with the exception of Music, because I am inclined to think that Music as a science, was not regularly cultivated in Arabia, though some examples may be produced to prove the contrary. The learned Farabi already mentioned as the translator of Aristotle's Analytics, and who was styled the Coryphaus of Philosophers, deserves perhaps to be recorded as the Timotheus of Arabiau Musicians, for his performance on the Lute before Sooltan Syf-ood-Doula, was not inferior to that of the Theban before Alexander. "Il tira, says D'Herbelot,' de sa poche une piece avec toutes ses parties qu'il distribua aux Musiciens, & continuant à soûtenir leur voix de son luth, il mit toute l'assemblée en si belle humeur, qu'ils se mirent tous à rire à gorge deployée; aprés quoy faisant chanter une autre de ses pieces, il les fit tous pleurer; & en dernier lieu changeant de registre, il endormit agreablement tous les assistans." vid. Art. Farabi. Bibliotheque, Farabi is said also to have written an introduction to the science of Music, which is mentioned in the Bilioteohed Br. Turchi of Toderini. " Nell' accennata clusse di Scienze, che contiene cento e venti due " volume, l'ottantesimo secondo scritto nell' Indice è un Trattato di Musica del Farabi inti-" tolato Medchalul Musiki, ossia Introduzione alla Musica." This valuable work of Toderini's, which seems very little known in India, contains a full account of the Arts and Sciences as known to, or cultivated by the Turks and Arabians, including, their Grammar, Logic, Rhetoric, Moral Philosophy, Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, Physics and Natural History, Medicine, Chemistry, Astronomy, Navigation, (Nautica, e Nuova Accademia di Marina.) Astrology, Poetry and Music. The work is entitled, Letteratura Turches ca, Studj, Accademie, Biblioteche e Tipografia in Costantinopli. Opera, dell' Ab. Gio. Battista Toderini. Tomo I, II, e III, in Venezia, 1786. The following extract from this work, relating to the Logic of the Arabs, as copied from the Greeks, will corroborate what I have before stated regarding that science.

La Logica, che studiano i Turchi è opera di Aristotele, il quale, come notò Gezali nel suo tibro Monked presso Herbelot, e l'inventore, dell'arte dell' ragionare, ed il primo, ch' abbia ridotto a metodo questa scienza. Oltre il Ketab Alvias le Aristothelu, ossia trattato del Sillogismo d' Aristotele, tradotto nell' Arabo, e diviso in due libri annoverati nel Catalogo

All this must indeed be granted to the Arabs, but it appears from the united testimony of the learned,* that their philosophy was entirely Grecian. 'They did not form, says Brucker, a new system, but merely revived the Peripatetic doctrine.' Their logic was the logic of Aristotle, and the common introduction to that science, which is now current in Arabia and India, is a simple translation of the Isagoge of Porphyry. Aristotle's rhetoric probably led the way to their own, and his logic, when applied to the rudiments of their language, produced that ingenious but intricate and elaborate elementary system, which has perhaps not improperly, been termed philosophical or transcendental grammar.

This then is the origin of the philosophical sciences among the Arabs. Grammar, Rhetoric and Logic or Dialectics, formed the basis, to which if we add Arithmetic, Geometry and Astronomy, which they Aso + Grammar, Rhetoric and Logic, formed what the Scholastics termed the trivium; Music, Arithmetic, Geometry and Astronomy the quadrivium; and these constituting the seven liberal arts, they very poetically described in the two following verses!

It must not indeed be denied, that there are many subjects connected with the arts and sciences, for which the modern nations of Europe are supposed to be indebted to the Arabs. Bossut attributes to them our present system of arithmetical numeration, as well as the first notions of Algebra which are found in Diophantus.* He gives them the credit of several important discoveries on trigonometrical calculation, and many ingenious improvements and alterations in astronomy.† An Arab in Spain was the first who attempted a theory of refraction and the twilight, which doctrine Malbranch is said to have enlarged upon, but as he does not quote the author, Bossut presumes he was unacquainted with his works. In truth the Arabs seem to have arrived at eminence in almost every science, and even in mechanics, the clepsydra or water clock sent by Haroon Al Rusheed in 799 to Charlemagne, is said to have astonished by its ingenuity the whole of Europe.‡

- ‡ In the dial of this Clepsydra, were twelve small doors, forming the divisions of the hours, and each of these doors opened in succession at the hour it marked, and let out little balls, which, falling on a brazen bell, struck the hour. The doors continued open till twelve o'clock, when twelve little knights mounted on horseback, came out together, paraded round the dial, and shut all the doors. This machine astonished all Europe, when men's minds were employed chiefly on futile questions of Theology and Grammar." Bossut. p. 161.

particularly in the celebrated Schola Salernitana?* For a detailed account however of the origin and progress of Grecian literature among the Arabs, I refer the student to Warton's 2d Dissertation on the History of English poetry, and Enfield's History of philosophy, from Brucker's Historia Critica Philosophy, a work of considerable merit, though Dr. Gillies is of opinion, that his account of Aristotle's philosophy, is in many parts erroneous, and in some even unintelligible; while others go still farther, and hint that he did not understand Greek! It will there be seen, that the acroatic works of the Stagyrite, were translated, studied and taught by the learned of Arabia, and that to these works in particular, the Arabians seem indebted for all their notions of the philosophical sciences.

It must not be forgot, that they translated Aristotle's Poetics. There is extant " Averroys Summa in Aristotelis poetriam ex Arabico sermone in Latinum traducta ab "Hermano Alemanno; Præmittitur determinatio Ibinrosdin in poetria Aristotelis Venet. "1515." There is a translation of the Poetics into Arabic by Abou Muscharmetta, entitled, ABOTIKA. See Herbel. Bibl. Oriental. p. 18. col. a. p. 971. b. p. 40. col. 2. p. 337, col. 2. The first they called Analuthica, and the second, Bari Armenias. But Aristotle's logic, metaphysics, and physics pleased them most; particularly the eight books of his physics, which exhibits a general view of that science. Some of our countrymen were translators of these Arabic books into Latin. Athelard, a monk of Bath, translated the Arabic Euclid into Latin, about 1000." Leland, Script. Brit. p. 200. There

Indeed the whole philosophy of the Arabs may be traced to the Greeks,* whose language and literature they seem to have studied with uncommon ardour, for upwards of five centuries, that is, from A. D. 754 to the taking of Bagdad in 1258. Rhetoric and logic were their favorite pursuits. Averrões, the great commentator, as he is generally called, is known to have paraphrased Aristotle's rhetoric, and Alfarabius is said to have written no less than sixty distinct treatises on the Aristotelian philosophy, which was publicly taught in Bagdad, Bussurah, Koofah, Bocharia, Alexandria, Cairo, Morocco and Fez, as well as in sereval parts of Spain and Italy; but the philosophical writings of the Greeks, and particularly from those of Aristotle, with which the Arabs had been long and familiarly acquainted. They have certainly adopted his analysis of language,* his definition of the parts of speech,† his reasoning on substance and accident, or Mode,† which they have applied to words, under the grammatical denominations of Nouns and Infinitives, and his whole theory of the elements of language as significant of ideas. These are some of the principal topics, which the Arabian grammarians take delight in discussing, and to which, they not improperly attach a high degree of importance, but the merit of originality must be transfered to the Stagyrite, whose dialectics, if I am not much mistaken, will be found to contain the most remarkable facts that distinguish the philosophical grammar of the Arabs.

‡ Accidents vero sive Modus est rei proprietas, quæ in aliquâ substantiâ inhæret, nec sine ipsâ potest existere. Element. Logicæ. By Accident here, and in Arabic grammar, as applied to an Infinitive, or is not meant as has been erroneously supposed, any thing casual or fortuitous: but as this is a point of some importance to the true understanding of an Arabic Musdur, (for an explanation of which I refer the student to my Annotations on the Commentary, p. 195.) I shall lay before him Dr. Gillies' note on the subject, which will certainly corroborate one material point of my argument. The Greek word συμεξεθημος is, as far as I know universally translated, "accident;" συμεξεθημοτα in the plural, "accidents," from which, "Accidence," denoting the little book, that explains the properties of the eight parts of speech, is generally held to be a corruption. But accident, in its proper sense of what is casual or fortuitous, has nothing to do with the one or the other; and Aristotle's meaning of συμεξεθημος ought to be expressed by a Latin or English word derived, not from 'accide,' but from, 'accide.' See p. 65.

which they are acquainted. Here then, are two opposite roads to the same end, and the student may take his choice. Either to adopt the plan of Horne Tooke and his followers, and set about digging for grammar through some dozen or fifteen collateral dialects, or getting boldly on the back of Synthesis with Mr. Harris and the Arabian grammarians, gallop circuitously to it, through the whole region of science.*

In order to learn any language with accuracy and facility, we must first endeavour to learn its rules, or the customary application of its words; these in their simple state, disencumbered of all technical formalities, are seldom difficult and may be easily acquired, but when once perplexed with obscure etymologies and logical definitions, and when every Dyche and Dilworth, who writes a twopenny-halfpenny guide to the eight parts of speech, deems it his duty to work them up into what he calls a new grammatical system, then indeed they assume a different character, or rather a variety of different characters, and are not easily acquired at all; the student, finding himself bewildered in the wordy labyrinth, abandons the study altogether, and willingly consigns to the Fates, the whole race of miserable grammarians with their miserable canons.

Felix grammaticus non est, sed nec fuit unquam,
Nec quisquam est felix nomine grammaticus:
Aut siquis felix præter fatum exstitit unquam,
Is demum excessit grammaticos canones.

As far however as relates to the present system of Arabic grammar, at least to the technical and speculative part of it, as distinct from the practical, my own opinion is, that it is chiefly, if not entirely derived from the case with the Arabian grammarians: they are always employed in raising straws with levers, in illustrating what cannot be misunderstood, in devising difficulties where none ever existed, and in perplexing the simplest rules of regimen and concord with useless subtilties and logical definitions; but if grammar be a particular art, what has it to do with general and abstract speculations? A disquisition on symbols and conventional signs, or the origin of general terms,* will not facilitate a student's progress in the laws of syntax. These may be important enquiries, but they are not the more so, because conducted in Arabic: they have in truth no more connexion with the language of the Arabs, than with the language of the Troglodytes.

It is indeed amusing to observe the very opposite opinions of learned men on the subject of grammar. Some will have it a science, which views language only as significant of thought, and this is philosophical or general grammar. Others consider it as a simple art, which teaches the inflexion of words, and their due disposition into sentences and phrases, and this is particular grammar. A third race of philologists will neither allow it to be general nor particular, but a mixture of both, and this may be properly called mixed, or Arabic grammar.

The modern grammarians of Europe consider grammar and etymology as synonymous terms, and with them all languages go upon wheels,† but those of Arabia who have no acquaintance with verbal antiquities, reject etymology altogether, and substitute in its place a dash of dialectics, with like literary distinction. Moolla Jamee is indeed the Priscian of the East, and his comment is considered the very ne plus ultrà of grammatical knowledge. Not to have read it, argues absolute ignorance; read it, and you are dubbed at once a Moolla, and a man of learning: such is the wonder-working efficacy of Arabic grammar. It supercedes in a great degree the knowledge of every other art, and every other science, being in fact, if we may credit some of the learned Arabian doctors, the very essence of all the arts and sciences.

But grammar after all in its obvious and natural sense, is truly a simple art, the art of teaching the rules of inflexion and syntax, or the various relations of words to one another in discourse. The rules necessary for this knowledge are neither very numerous nor difficult, and perhaps not more so in Arabic than in other languages, but the Arabian philologists by blending them with the abstract speculations of logic, have effected a new and complex system of grammar, a system which comprises not merely the various relations, but the exact significations and definitions of words; their divisions into genera or classes; their combinations into propositions, and these again into reasoning or dicourse. Now all this is the proper business of logic, which is surely a distinct science, yet all this they have in some measure confounded with the simple rules of government and concord, so that a student looking into their works for a plain rule of syntax, finds himself entangled in all the mysteries of metaphysics.

There are some men, says Johnson, who seem to think nothing so much the characteristic of genius, as to do common things in an uncommon manner, like Hudibras, to tell the clock by algebra, or like the lady in Dr. Young's Satires, to drink tea by stratagem; to quit the beaten track only because it is known, and take a new path, however crooked of Genii.* Lest any one however should be puzzled to find out the true nature of this latter dialect, a learned scholiast comes forward with a specimen,+ and another gravely adds, as an infallible proof of its demoniac originality, that no human being can pronounce it three times successively at one breathing.

Through this commentary however, this záoua μέγα of syntax, or some other, of equally 'crude consistence,' every student is obliged to 'swim, or sink, or wade, or creep, or fly,' who would aspire to any thing

' Words so debas'd and hard, no stone,

Is hard enough to touch them on.'

Which the reader may compare with the well known line in Homer,

Πολλὰ δ'ἄνανία, κάτανία, πάςανίά τε δοχμιά τ', ἦλθον.

So happily paraphrased by Pope,

O'er hills, o'er dales, o'er crags, o'er rocks, they go; Jumping, high o'er the shrubs of the rough ground, Rattle the clatt'ring cars, and the shockt axles bound.

* An analogous division of language prevails among the Hindoos—" The gods speak Sanscrita; benevolent genii Pracrita; wicked demons Pisachi, and men of low tribes and the rest Magad'hi." Colebrooke on Sans. and Pracrit. A. R. 7. 199.

† It is also given in the Tulkhees-ool-Miftah, a treatise on Arabic Rhetoric, as a specimen of verbal harshness, and is supposed to have been uttered by a Jin after having killed a traveller in the Arabian desert, whose name was Hurb. It turns out however to be very intelligible Arabic, though in—

Shuekh Ibnool Hajib, has not commenced his work with the prescribed ceremonial of praise to the deity. This omission however must not be attributed to negligence or contumely—'then to what must it be attributed?' why, to a proper sense of modest humility to be sure, which led him to depreciate his own merit as a grammarian, in comparison with those who preceded him, (the grace of God be upon them!) and consequently he thought himself unworthy to imitate their works in any respect! but although, continues the commentator, he has omitted the actual insertion of the words, it cannot therefore be inferred, that in direct opposition to the positive injunction of the sacred ritual, he has neglected the ceremony altogether. 'Oh no!—that would be an unreasonable and unnecessary supposition,' particularly as we know 'adds he,' that it is not restricted to verbal forms alone, but may be virtually discharged in secret, mental aspirations!' Now this is considered a very conclusive piece of reasoning, and completely exculpates the grammarian from all manner of censure.*

In speculations of this nature the Arabian grammarians seem to take peculiar delight. One third of the commentary on the Kafeea by Moolla Jamee, consists of subtilties and sophisms, which have very often no more connexion with the science of grammar, than with the science of palmistry. Every trifle gives occasion for an episode, and every episode is 'conglutinated or made up' + of as much recondite erudition, as the learned commentator can well muster together. After defining a word, he ascends synthetically to language as a compound, which comprises he says the language of Gop, of man, of angels, and

I know not well what the votaries of the eastern oracles will say to this comparison. I fear they will rise indignant against me for venturing an expression that may tend to degrade the literary eminence of the Arabs: but this is not my intention: I would rather support than lessen their importance. I consider myself in some measure as one of their disciples, and certainly feel respect for their language and literature. But although I freely acknowledge their merits, I will not acknowledge the infallibility of their doctrines, nor voluntarily subscribe to all their grammatical dogmas; their superlunar speculations; their metaphysical distinctions 'twixt south and south-west side;' and the whole host of fallacies and fictions, with which they perplex and embarrass the most simple subjects of literature. Undoubtedly their works discover both genius and learning, and in the minute cultivation of many sciences, particularly grammar and rhetoric, it may be doubted whether they have been surpassed by the learned of any other nation, but their literary affectation by disfiguring their works, diminishes in a considerable degree the real merit of their labours, and throws so many unnecessary impedia. ments in the way of the student, that it is not very surprising we should find them almost entirely neglected.

One specimen of their solemn mode of trifling in literary works may be worth inserting. The Author of the grammatical treatise termed the Kafeca, for some reason best known to himself, neglected to prefix to his grammar the usual auspicatory formula of praise to the deity, the omission of which is considered by the sober Moosulmans as a serious mark of impicty. It was therefore necessary to defend this omission, and accordingly his commentator Moolla Jamee, in the true spirit of casuistical sophistry, settles the point of conscience as follows: "It is observable, 'says he' that the Author

Those indeed who are fond of simple abstracts of science, will have no reason to complain of the length or difficulty of the Miut Amil. It contains in something less than five quarto pages, the most important department of Arabic Syntax, and is almost entirely free from those little verbal quibbles and philological fopperies, which tend more or less to disgrace almost every work on Arabic grammar. The title to be sure carries with it an appearance of superfluous exactness, and some little grammatical finesse will no doubt be discovered in the author's mode of supporting it,* but this is too petty an objection to merit any remark, it is in truth a mere systematic capriccio: a solitary particle out of the great arabian desert of metaphysical refinement, where subtilties, Swarm populous, un-numbered as the sands, Of Barca or Cyrene's torrid soil.

* His method is as follows. He divides regimen into two general classes or departments, termed verbal and absolute. By the first is simply understood the effect that one word has upon the termination of another. By the second is meant that specific mark of case assumed by a noun when used absolutely as the nominative to a sentence. The government in the first instance is termed verbal, because, the change of termination is occasioned by some word either expressed or understood. In the second it is called absolute, because the word thus governed is considered independent of all verbal agency, and acquires this peculiar form of construction from its nominative situation alone. Verbal government he then subdivides into two distinct classes. The first, comprehends ninety-one specific words, which are termed from their nature, Prescriptive governors. The second, contains seven distinct classes of words, such as verbs, adjectives, participles, infinitives &c. &c. each of which necessarily includes all the words of its own species, and each of these classes he considers numerically as one, and terms the whole Analogous governors; here then are all the verbal governors in the language reduced to ninety-eight, viz. ninety-one in the prescriptive, and seven in the analogous class, to which if we add two in the absolute, we shall have an exact centenary of governing powers.

PREFACE.

OF the two original works forming the subject of the present volume, and of which an English translation is now for the first time submitted to the public, the MIJUT AMIL or that comprising the text, contains a brief but comprehensive view of the first division of Arabic Syntax, or of that part, which treats of the government exercised by nouns, verbs and particles. The second, or Shurh, is a commentary on the former, and illustrates by a more minute and detailed analysis, the various rules recorded in the text, and the general acceptations of the several governing powers.

The first Book is entitled Miut Amil, or the Hundred Governing Powers, because the Author has contrived to reduce to that precise number, the whole of those powers in Arabic construction, which are found to affect the terminations of nouns and verbs. A synopsis of this system may be seen in the commencement of the work, and a brief explanation of its leading divisions will be found in the concluding remarks to the translation; it is unnecessary therefore to enter into any further detail, and I shall merely observe of the title, that although it appears in some degree affected, and is not I imagine altogether strictly correct, yet the general design of the treatise, displays so much skill and ingenuity, and combines at the same time so many excellencies of brevity, order, perspicuity and precision, that it may be fairly considered, on the whole, as the most judicious compendium of Arabic regimen, that has yet appeared in the language.
